IN THE REGULAR WAY

Council Will Pass the Phoenix Ordinance.

GAS LAW WAS HELD OVER

The Fathers Discussed the Ordinance at Length and Then Decided to Move Slowly—An Important Letter From Reverend Whitehead and Signed by William G. Huckle and Wife Was Referred to Police Committee—Other Business.

Council talked important matters at the meeting last night, but failed to pass the three important ordinances or any one of them.

The first business was the objection of Mr. Peake to the minutes declaring that the walks in Jethro were finished, but on finding his mistake he withdrew the point. The ordinance which provides for the widening of Avondale from Bank street to the Calcutta road was passed, but Engineer George reminded council that the work could not be done until spring, and the ordinance providing for a board of improvements was taken up.

Messrs. Purinton and Clark of the committee approved the bill, but President Marshall had a minority report, and thought it ought to be defeated in justice to the people of the suburbs.

Then came the ordinance to regulate the price of gas. Mr. Stewart remarked that it was a hard matter to reach, as it did not affect the whole city, but only had to deal with the patrons of the Bridgewater company. As he understood, it they were by no means a unit in the matter, and would gladly pay more money before they would be without gas. The only reason the company was in business was because the officers expected to have manufactured gas in the near future, and the mains no doubt would be used in distributing that. He requested that it go over. Mr. Horwell said the committee never had a meeting, and he thought it ought to be discharged and a new one appointed.

Then Mr. Peake arose, and said that he had been connected with several committees and had not been recognized, and that was why he had not acted on this committee. It was decided to have a report at the next meeting.

The bill for the Phoenix company was the next consideration, and President Marshall acknowledged that he had been too busy to look after his share of it, while Mr. Owen declared he had been waiting for a committee meeting. Solicitor Clark remarked that he had investigated the ordinance, and found it legal. It had been compared with the telephone ordinances of Canton and Cleveland, and found to be all right. Mr. Owen saw an objection in the bill because the price was not stipulated, believing that a clause should be inserted making the price as it is at present and not allowing a change. Mr. Peake also had an amendment in embryo concerning the poles. He thought there were enough unsightly looking sticks on the streets at present, and believed it would be right to compel the Phoenix to put its poles in alleys. Clerk Hanley here remarked the company was anxious to begin work at once, and a motion was made by Owen that a clause be inserted that the price not exceed what the contracts at present called for, and the word streets be stricken out. Mr. Purinton objected to the motion on the ground that it was unwise to pass it when there were so many objections, thinking it would be better to have the ordinance follow the regular order of council. It was dangerous to make amendments without careful consideration, and it would be better to present them at the next meeting in writing.

Mr. Owen moved that steps be constructed in answer to a petition from Peake street and Waterloo road, but Mr. Purinton objected because it was not in keeping with the course of council. Mr. Stewart said the matter had been investigated and this was an extreme case, as the road was in awful condition. The motion passed, but Challis, Purinton and Horwell voted against it. Then Mr. Owen moved to reconsider, and it was left in the hands of the street committee.

A petition signed by over 250 residents of the West End asked for that light on Jethro street. The sidewalks, they claim, are dangerous at night, and council gave the matter to the light committee.

Street committee reported on the Virginia avenue sewer and recommended that nothing be done with it until council could find it right to sewer the other streams in East End. They objected to the steps that were to approach the Sixth street school, as the children would then trespass on the railroad, and they would only be saved a walk of half a square at best. They recommended that the steps called for on the Calcutta road be paid for by the property owners, and Mr. Peake voted no on the acceptance of the report. In connection with street matters Clerk Hanley reported that he had given notes to Colonel Hill and William Brunt for $1000; Mr. Aten, $1500; First National Bank, $3,868.20, and that Chief Gill had served notice on Lincoln avenue people for the new sewer.

An ordinance establishing limits wherein wooden buildings can be erected, a long needed improvement, was introduced by Mr. Purinton and referred to Owen, Challis and Stewart. A bill for a six inch sewer on Lincoln was also brought forward, and placed in the hands of Horwell, Peake and Purinton, while a resolution regarding worthless buildings that have been condemned, was passed.

Then came an unusual happening, the following being read by Clerk Hanley, with the explanation that it had been handed him.

We the undersigned declare the following statement to be true:

On Wednesday evening, Nov. 6, about 7 o'clock, we went to the house of Ann Houser, and on going into the parlor found Police Officer Whan sitting on the sofa. We were introduced to him. Annie had told us the Monday previous, Nov. 4, that this man had been in the habit of coming to see her every other day, and that he had been wanting to marry her but she would not; but he bothered her so that she did not know whether she would or not. She told me (W. G. Huckle) personally all about Whan and how he had bothered her, and she stated she had promised to give him her answer that week. I told her on no account to give an answer till I saw her again, as I wished her to see certain men who could advise her.

WM. G. HUCKLE.

Before me, a notary public, in and for the county of Columbiana, and state of Ohio, personally appeared the above named William G. Huckle and Alice Huckle, and made oath that the above statements are true and correct to their personal knowledge.

In witness whereof I hereunto set my hand and affix my seal at East Liverpool, this 14th day of November, in the year of our Lord 1895.

B. H. HOBGSON,

Notary Public.

Mr. Peake moved it be thrown under the table, but Mr. Stewart thought it should go to a committee and Mr. Challis suggested police committee as the proper body. The solicitor said the document was not in the form of charges, since the accused must have some idea of what he is to answer, and the committee would act as a grand jury. The officer, he said, had waived all rights and was willing to be tried by council, but there should be an ordinance governing such matters. In justice to Mayor Gilbert, he stated the document had only been handed to him in the evening, or it would have been his duty to suspend the officer and then report to council. Mr. Peake didn't think it right to permit foreigners to come here and run the country, but was silenced by Mr. Purinton, who called the attention of President Marshall to the fact that the speaker was out of order. As it was plainly evident that council had no right to compel anyone to come before them and testify, he moved the solicitor prepare an ordinance governing this and all similar cases. Clark said he understood the committee had evidence, but he could not see where it was the business of council, for the committee could come to city hall if they desired to present that evidence.

Engineer George called attention to the fire plug in the rear of the china works, stating that the dirt being placed there would make it necessary to have a new plug. The matter was referred to street committee, and Mr. Owens touched upon the improvement of the Calcutta road. The work was extensive and much money was needed to keep it going.

An advance had been granted contractors in the past and he moved that Contractor Rinehart be given 75 per cent of the cost in this case. Mr. Purinton amended that the advance be two-thirds of the estimate of the engineer, provided Mr. Rinehart pays the discount. Purinton, Challis, Horwell and Marshall voted for the amendment, and Mr. Stewart said that something should be done, as the work would not be finished until next June. Mr. Purinton thought the contractor knew what he was getting when he took it. Clerk Hanley was instructed to give notes for the amount, and let Mr. Rinehart realize on them.

A motion to construct walks on Sheridan avenue was disposed of in a

PUMPS WERE STOPPED

When the Wickets Were Lowered at the Dam.

WILL RESUME AT MIDNIGHT

There Was No Fresh Water, but the Flood of Typhoid Fever Germs Was Allowed to Go by Without Getting Into the Reservoir—A Boating Stage.

The handsome pumps at the water works were silent and motionless today, and the city used water that was already in the reservoirs.

Last evening Superintendent Morley received a telegram announcing that the wickets at the dam had been lowered at 7:33 o'clock, and the flood was on its way down the river. He at once gave orders that the pumps be stopped at midnight and that they be kept off duty until the same hour tonight. Mr. Morley estimated that the supply in the reservoirs would last until midnight, and there would be no need of pumping. By that time he believed the flood of filth that has been gathering above the dam for months would have passed down the river, and there would be no danger from that source. Pittsburgh has been so afflicted with typhoid fever that it was feared the water supply of this city would be tainted if the pumps were allowed to remain in operation.

The plan does away with much of the danger, but it will not hurt anyone to use boiled water for a few days.

The river continues to rise steadily, and a boating stage is really here. It was realized in Pittsburgh last night, and there was the usual hustle and bustle about the river front. The Volunteer got away before the other boats, and is the first tow of coal to go down in many months. The Elaine passed here yesterday with a tow of empties, and the Ben Hur is due up this afternoon. It is the first packet to pass the city.

PLEASANT HOME WEDDING.

Mr. Homer Clark and Miss Ida Allison Were Married.

Mr. Homer Clark and Miss Ida Allison were married at the residence of the bride this afternoon on Third street, a number of guests being present. The ceremony was performed by Doctor Huston and immediately afterward the happy party partook of an appetizing dinner. The bride looked pretty in a gown of white silk, and the groom wore simple black. They received many beautiful and costly presents. They leave this evening for Atlanta, where they will spend a few weeks, and will be at home to their friends at a cosy residence on Third street after Dec. 15. The groom is prominently connected with the freight depot force and the bride is a charming young lady.

HER ALLOTTED YEARS.

Mrs. Albright, of Clarkson, Has Passed Away.

Mrs. Albright, widow of the late Daniel Albright, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Matthew Warrick, in Clarkson, aged 70 years. Though her suffering was long and severe, she never murmured, but bore the intense pain with Christian fortitude and resignation. She became a member of the Methodist Episcopal church when only 11 years of age, and was a consistent Christian to the time of her death. One daughter, Mrs. Warrick, and a son in Missouri, are her only surviving children. Funeral services were conducted in the Clarkson Presbyterian church by Reverend Clark, of the Methodist Episcopal church, a large number of friends being in attendance.

DISCREDITED.

A Wild Story of Isaac Scott Being Poisoned.

For several days stories have been floating around the city which said that Isaac Scott, the Smith's Ferry man who died suddenly the other day, had been poisoned. As the tale could be traced to no reliable source, a reporter questioned James Douglass, a member of the Rechabite lodge to which Scott belonged. He had heard the story, but did not believe it. At the office of the company in which Scott was insured it was learned that they also knew of the matter, but thought it arose from the fact that Scott died before the doctor arrived, and no inquest had been held.

MAKE IT BROADER.

A Suggestion Regarding the Employment Bureau.

"If the city is going to have an employment bureau, why not extend it beyond the ranks of the potters?" came from the lips of a prominent resident last night. "The same expense could answer for the work, and, if necessary, the unions having the matter in hand could charge a small fee for serving outsiders. The girl-for-general-housework question is an unsolved problem in the city, and many a housewife would gladly welcome a system that would give them an opportunity to get a girl when they need one. I say, extend the lines of this project."

Ten Dollars Reward.

EDITOR NEWS REVIEW:—The Crisis says in reporting an interview with the pastor of St. Stephen's: "The Rev. Charles O'Meara, who on Sunday last came out squarely against the Huckle movement—"

We have made diligent search amongst the members of St. Stephen's congregation, and so far, have failed to find anyone who heard from the rector on that occasion, or any other, from either the pulpit or chancel steps or any other part of the church, any utterance of any kind, which could, even by our local representative of Baron Munchausen, be tortured into a reference to this matter. Having failed in our personal efforts, we offer the above reward for the information, and would suggest that anyone learning it make the nucleus of a subscription towards a new social purity improvement work to be inaugurated and carried on under the direction and with the assured zeal for all such movements of the Crisis.

A MEMBER.

A reporter waited on the pastor of St. Stephen's and was informed by him that, to the best of his recollection, he had on no occasion, made any public or official reference to the Huckle movement.

Frisky Horses.

A team of horses owned by W. H. Frazier got away from the driver this morning and gave him a long race before they were captured.

Chambers Scott, a West Virginia farmer, left his team standing at Sixth and Washington streets today when a street car came by. The horses scared, and reared and plunged in a mad effort to get away, but the man who held them stuck to the lines although he was dragged some distance. One horse was hurt by its plunging.

Found the Pocketbook.

A pocketbook was lost on Market street the other day and advertised last evening in the NEWS REVIEW. The owner claimed the article this morning which means that an advertisement in the NEWS REVIEW is always seen by the people.

Praised Shore Acres.

Elks in the city who are interested in the "Shore Acres" company will be delighted to hear that at Rochester they were given a rousing reception, and the newspapers gave them great praise. Steubenville also gave the company a cordial greeting.

WE WILL BE THANKFUL

The Whole City Will Observe the Holiday.

STORES, BANKS AND FACTORIES

Will Close and Give Honor to King Turkey, While the People are Glad the Past Year Has Been no Worse—Where You Can Find Pleasure and Profit.

Thanksgiving Day, a time for enjoyment as well as the giving of thanks, will be generally observed in the city.

According to custom the churches will meet in services of thanks at the Methodist Protestant church, and Doctor Huston will deliver the sermon. He will speak on "National and International Providences," and the meeting is called for 10:30 o'clock. Special music will be one of the features, and the whole city is invited. In the East End the people will meet at the Second U. P. church, and Rev. H. E. Hall will preach. In the evening an entertainment will be conducted by the Junior Endeavor of the church. The Salvation Army has also prepared for special services, which will be held in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. Captain Hall, the officer in charge, will explain the workings of the Band of Love, and will give special attention to junior work.

Business interests in the city will, of course, observe the day. The dry goods stores will be closed, and many other branches of business will shut their doors, although some will remain open until noon for the accommodation of those people who always forget to do their shopping the night before a holiday. As these, however, will be few and far between, it would be best to make your purchases this evening. Some of the potteries will close the entire day, but a few are so rushed that they may not rest more than the customary time for dinner. However, in several plants the matter has not yet been decided, but it seems certain there will be no concentrated movement in that direction.

The Columbian Club will conduct its celebration of the day by a pleasant dancing party in the rooms of the organization this evening, and the Phoenix boys will have a club dance tomorrow evening. The quarters will be beautifully decorated with potted plants and evergreens, and a delightful evening is anticipated. The Catholic Club, of Wells-ville, will dance this evening, and the Ad Libitum club, a new organization of this city, will hold a reception at Bradshaw hall tomorrow evening, a private dance taking place there in the afternoon. The Turners have their dance in the evening, and expect to make it exceptionally enjoyable.

Special literary exercises were held in the schools this afternoon, Thanksgiving being the subject in almost every instance. When the youngsters go home today it is with the understanding that they are not to return until Monday, and while they are away the work of regulating the heating apparatus at the Fourth street building will be carried on. Professor Sanor, accompanied by a few of his staff, will leave this evening for Cambridge, where they will attend the meeting of the Eastern Ohio Teachers' association, an organization which meets every year at Thanksgiving. They will take no active part in the session.

The football game is another feature of the day that will not be passed without attention from those who admire athletic sports. The local team have been practicing faithfully, and now believe that they can put up a game that will cause no end of sport. The Allegheny boys are in a good class, and if Liverpool succeeds in winning out, it will be a splendid victory for the boys who have worked so hard to make the game popular in the city. Ladies will be admitted free.

The postoffice will follow the usual custom and carriers will make their morning delivery, their windows at the office being open from 6:30 to 7:30 in the evening. The delivery and stamp windows will be open until 10 o'clock in the morning, and the money order department will be closed during the entire day.

If the markets are an indication, the city will eat a good Thanksgiving dinner, for they contain every substantial and delicacy the market affords. Turkeys dressed and undressed came into town today by the wagon load, and it is safe to say that thousands will be sold this evening and tomorrow morning. The stores are enlivened by the presence of garden truck in abundance, while the perfume from smoking pots and pans seems almost to spread over the city at this early hour.

Mrs. Albright, widow of the late Daniel Albright, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Matthew Warrick, in Clarkson, aged 70 years. Though her suffering was long and severe, she never murmured, but bore the intense pain with Christian fortitude and resignation. She became a member of the Methodist Episcopal church when only 11 years of age, and was a consistent Christian to the time of her death. One daughter, Mrs. Warrick, and a son in Missouri, are her only surviving children. Funeral services were conducted in the Clarkson Presbyterian church by Reverend Clark, of the Methodist Episcopal church, a large number of friends being in attendance.

DISCREDITED.

A Wild Story of Isaac Scott Being Poisoned.

For several days stories have been floating around the city which said that Isaac Scott, the Smith's Ferry man who died suddenly the other day, had been poisoned. As the tale could be traced to no reliable source, a reporter questioned James Douglass, a member of the Rechabite lodge to which Scott belonged. He had heard the story, but did not believe it. At the office of the company in which Scott was insured it was learned that they also knew of the matter, but thought it arose from the fact that Scott died before the doctor arrived, and no inquest had been held.

MAKE IT BROADER.

A Suggestion Regarding the Employment Bureau.

"If the city is going to have an employment bureau, why not extend it beyond the ranks of the potters?" came from the lips of a prominent resident last night. "The same expense could answer for the work, and, if necessary, the unions having the matter in hand could charge a small fee for serving outsiders. The girl-for-general-housework question is an unsolved problem in the city, and many a housewife would gladly welcome a system that would give them an opportunity to get a girl when they need one. I say, extend the lines of this project."

Ten Dollars Reward.

EDITOR NEWS REVIEW:—The Crisis says in reporting an interview with the pastor of St. Stephen's: "The Rev. Charles O'Meara, who on Sunday last came out squarely against the Huckle movement."

We have made diligent search amongst the members of St. Stephen's congregation, and so far, have failed to find anyone who heard from the rector on that occasion, or any other, from either the pulpit or chancel steps or any other part of the church, any utterance of any kind, which could, even by our local representative of Baron Munchausen, be tortured into a reference to this matter. Having failed in our personal efforts, we offer the above reward for the information, and would suggest that anyone learning it make it the nucleus of a subscription towards a new social purity improvement work to be inaugurated and carried on under the direction and with the assured zeal for all such movements of the Crisis.

A MEMBER.

A reporter waited on the pastor of St. Stephen's and was informed by him that, to the best of his recollection, he had on no occasion, made any public or official reference to the Huckle movement.

Frisky Horses.

A team of horses owned by W. H. Frazier got away from the driver this morning and gave him a long race before they were captured.

Found the Pocketbook.

A pocketbook was lost on Market street the other day and advertised last evening in the NEWS REVIEW. The owner claimed the article this morning which means that an advertisement in the News Review is always seen by the people.

Praised Shore Acres.

Elks in the city who are interested in the "Shore Acres" company will be delighted to hear that at Rochester they were given a rousing reception, and the newspapers gave them great praise. Steubenville also gave the company a cordial greeting.

WE WILL BE THANKFUL

Will Close and Give Honor to King Turkey, While the People are Glad the Fast Year Has Been no Worse—Where You Can Find Pleasure and Profit.

Thanksgiving Day, a time for enjoyment as well as the giving of thanks, will be generally observed in the city.

According to custom the churches will meet in services of thanks at the Methodist Protestant church, and Doctor Huston will deliver the sermon. He will speak on "National and International Providences," and the meeting is called for 10:30 o'clock. Special music will be one of the features, and the whole city is invited. In the East End the people will meet at the Second U. P. church, and Rev. H. E. Hall will preach. In the evening an entertainment will be conducted by the Junior Endeavor of the church. The Salvation Army has also prepared for special services, which will be held in the afternoon at 3 o'clock. Captain Hall, the officer in charge, will explain the workings of the Band of Love, and will give special attention to house work.

Business interests in the city will, of course, observe the day. The dry goods stores will be closed, and many other branches of business will shut their doors, although some will remain open until noon for the accommodation of those people who always forget to do their shopping the night before a holiday. As these, however, will be few and far between, it would be best to make your purchases this evening. Some of the potteries will close the entire day, but a few are so rushed that they may not rest more than the customary time for dinner. However, in several plants the matter has not yet been decided, but it seems certain there will be no concentrated movement in that direction.

The Columbian Club will conduct its celebration of the day by a pleasant dancing party in the rooms of the organization this evening, and the Phoenix boys will have a club dance tomorrow evening. The quarters will be beautifully decorated with potted plants and evergreens, and a delightful evening is anticipated. The Catholic Club, of Wells-ville, will dance this evening, and the Ad Libitum club, a new organization of this city, will hold a reception at Bradshaw hall tomorrow evening, a private dance taking place there in the afternoon. The Turners have their dance in the evening, and expect to make it exceptionally enjoyable.

Special literary exercises were held in the schools this afternoon, Thanksgiving being the subject in almost every instance. When the youngsters go home today it is with the understanding that they are not to return until Monday, and while they are away the work of regulating the heating apparatus at the Fourth street building will be carried on. Professor Sanor, accompanied by a few of his staff, will leave this evening for Cambridge, where they will attend the meeting of the Eastern Ohio Teachers' association, an organization which meets every year at Thanksgiving. They will take no active part in the session.

The football game is another feature of the day that will not be passed without attention from those who admire athletic sports. The local team have been practicing faithfully, and now believe that they can put up a game that will cause no end of sport. The Allegheny boys are in a good class, and if Liverpool succeeds in winning out, it will be a splendid victory for the boys who have worked so hard to make the game popular in the city. Ladies will be admitted free.

The postoffice will follow the usual custom and carriers will make their morning delivery, their windows at the office being open from 6:30 to 7:30 in the evening. The delivery and stamp windows will be open until 10 o'clock in the morning, and the money order department will be closed during the entire day.

If the markets are an indication, the city will eat a good Thanksgiving dinner, for they contain every substantial and delicacy the market affords. Turkeys dressed and undressed came into town today by the wagon load, and it is safe to say that thousands will be sold this evening and tomorrow morning. The stores are enlivened by the presence of garden truck in abundance, while the perfume from smoking pots and pans seems almost to spread over the city at this early hour.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., WEDNESDAY, NOV. 27.

For President,
WILLIAM MCKINLEY,
 Of Ohio.

TWO THANKSGIVINGS.

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving, and as becomes a patriotic American citizen filled with that feeling which has made the nation what it is, East Liverpool will give thanks after the most
 approved fashion; but while the people
 are enjoying the occasion with enthusiasm and zeal, they can not recall another Thanksgiving when there was little if any cause for exuberant spirits.

That was two years ago. President
 Cleveland and his destroying friends
 had been in office long enough to frighten the public, and East Liverpool was suffering. The oft repeated
 assertion that a Democratic administration would mean Democratic times
 had become a reality, but not as the boasting champions of free trade had prophesied. Where they had promised
 joy and gladness was found mourning
 and sorrow; where they had claimed
 brilliant sunshine was nothing but shadowy storm. A veil hung over the country, and this place with its great
 industry was wrapped in gloom. Months
 before the potteries had closed, and
 hundreds of people who never knew
 the real meaning of want were suffering, while thousands who never believed they would be so stricken were wondering how the wolf was to be kept from the door. It was a sad time for the city, and to this day the suffering occasioned by the idiotic policy of the Democracy is remembered and deplored. The people have not forgotten that dark, gloomy Thanksgiving, when starvation stalked
 with awful tread through the city and
 thousands wondered where it was all
 going to end.

Now it is different. There has been a change. The people who supported
 the policy of panic and destruction
 have come from the darkness of the campaign prevarications through
 which they groped toward the ballot
 box three years ago, into the light of
 their own intelligence and understanding. The school of experience
 has taught them a bitter lesson, and it will not soon be forgotten. Not a thousand but tens of thousands have learned to know that they were deceived and hoodwinked into giving Grover Cleveland an office, and like
 the Americans that they are, endowed
 with the power to choose for themselves, they will soon relegate him to
 oblivion and raise in his stead a man
 well worthy their support and respect. As a step to this they have steadily rebuked Democracy at the
 polls with mighty outpourings of
 their wrath. That is why we can look upon Thanksgiving tomorrow as
 a day of gladness. The light of prosperity seems about to dawn, and there
 is reason for rejoicing. Eat, drink
 and be merry for there is no better
 time. East Liverpool has seen the depth of its sorrow, and with judicious legislation will rise from the ashes of its gloom and shine as what
 it really is, one of the most enterprising and energetic of the smaller cities
 of the land. Its people are right, but
 they cannot stand against the thirst
 for foreign prosperity at the expense
 of our own, as it was shown in the last Democratic congress. It is the duty
 of all to be thankful, from the hum-
 blest laborer to the richest capitalist.
 All have shared the trouble, and all
 should have the gladness.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, O., is of the opinion
 that there is nothing as good for
 children troubled with colds or croup
 as Chamberlain's Cough remedy. He has used it in his family for several years with the best results and always keeps a bottle of it in the house. After having a gripe he was himself
 troubled with a severe cough. He used other remedies without benefit
 and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it soon effected a permanent cure.

COMMANDED TO KILL.

Turkish Officers Told Soldiers

CONVINCING EVIDENCE SECURED.

An English Newspaper Correspondent
 Overheard Turkish Soldiers Talking
 About the Order—Extra Gunboats May
 Pass the Dardanelles.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Times this morning publishes an article written at Erzeroum, dated Nov. 9. The correspondent says: "The massacre here
 certainly occurred by the order of the authorities and this order must have emanated originally from the central authorities at Constantinople. Much
 circumstantial evidence can be produced to corroborate this statement."

The correspondent of The Times,
 writing from Erzeroum, then proceeds
 to repeat a conversation which he over-
 heard going on between the Turkish
 soldiers who were guarding his door.
 Their statements were to the effect that
 their officers had ordered them at a
 given signal to massacre the Armenians.
 The correspondent then continues:
 "I had been visiting at the British
 consulate with Mr. Chambers Sunday afternoon, Nov. 3, when the new outbreak took place. The Armenians
 again crowded to the American school.
 A number of persons were killed on
 this day, the estimates ranging from 18
 to 35. The scenes in the cemeteries
 where the victims have been buried by
 the sufferers have been heartrending.
 On Nov. 7 I visited all of the ruined
 bazars, going as far as Sera, but during the entire journey I did not see a single Christian."

A Constantinople special says: The
 ambassadors will hold another formal
 meeting in order to decide what steps
 to take to put an end to the so called
 "shuffling" of the ports.

The impression prevails that if the
 firmans are not very soon granted the
 extra gunboats will pass the Dardanelles without the port's permission,
 even if they have to be conveyed
 through by battleships stripped of action.

In deed, nobody here can see how the powers can retreat from the position
 they have assumed without serious loss
 of prestige, especially as their demands
 are based on treaty rights, which are
 admitted by the sultan and his advisers.

In some quarters it is said that the
 sultan's objection to granting the firmans
 is really caused by his belief that he can do so with impunity, in view of
 the objection raised by Russia to Austria's proposal on the subject, and that
 this constituted a difference of opinion
 among the powers.

 whom this view of the affair was submitted said that if the sultan actually
 thought there was any material difference of opinion among the powers he would do well to get rid of that belief
 as soon as possible.

 Convicts Assault Penitentiary Officials at Jackson, Mich.

JACKSON, Mich., Nov. 27.—A desper-
 ate riot has occurred at the state prison,
 Deputy Warden Northrup was struck
 on the head with a hammer and is thought to be fatally injured. Superintendent Coffey of the shirt factory
 was beaten into insensibility with a club, and Foreman Miller slugged with
 whatever the convicts could lay hands
 on. The enraged prisoners also smashed
 a score of machines with hammers
 and iron bars before they were controlled.

There were 100 convicts at work in
 the shirt factory, but only eight were concerned in the riot. The trouble was caused by Foreman Miller threatening
 to report Dick Huntley, a 20-year man,
 for not doing his work properly. Huntley secured a club and without warning knocked Miller down. The other officers rushed to the foreman's assistance and several convicts took a hand and the riot became general, but
 on the appearance of armed keepers
 the prisoners ceased their marauding
 efforts and were locked in their cells.

AN EDITOR BADLY BEATEN.
 Troughs Terribly Abuse a Reform Journalist in West Virginia.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. Nov. 27.—City
 Editor R. B. Yeuell of The Evening Times, has been waylaid on Third avenue by John Bingham, Dave Flaherty, Edmund Fry and three others, whose names have not yet been learned.
 He was beaten until he was insensible, and was left in a dying condition.

MONSTER MASS MEETING IN NEW YORK
PRELUDING OVER BY EDITOR DANA.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Cooper union
 was crowded with a large and enthusiastic audience last night, of sympathizers with the Cuban insurgents.
 Charles A. Dana presided and made
 the opening address, eulogizing the late Jose Marti and expressing strong sympathy with the Cuban cause.

 Congressman Amos Cummings, Governor McIntyre of Colorado, Culbre-uth of Texas, Clarence King, Ethan Allen, Martin T. McMahon, Rev. William S. Rainsford, William F. Ball,
 mayor of Fargo, Dak.; ex-Governor R.
 A. Alger of Michigan, Governor Roger
 Allen of North Dakota, United States
 Senator William E. Chandler, Angustus W. Peters, Governor Upham of Wisconsin, Patrick Egan and Andrew
 Carnegie. All the letters expressed
 sympathy with the cause of Cuba.

Congressman Sulzer made a strong
 speech, advocating recognition of the Cubans by this country. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:
 Resolved, That we extend our sympathy to the Cuban people in their
 struggle for freedom and independence,
 and we call on the congress and the president of these United States, and
 request them to grant belligerent rights
 to the Cuban republic.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL MISSIONS.
 The Woman's Auxiliary Holding a Meeting in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Foreign Nations' mission of the Protestant Episcopal church has been
 in session here. Bishop Brewer of Montana presided. Bishop Graves of China reported the great spread of Christian knowledge in the orient and
 brought encouraging reports of the extent of the work performed in China.
 Rev. Isaac Doanman of Japan told of the growth of the Protestant Episcopal faith
 in the island.

He assured his hearers that his charge in Japan would be anxious for
 his return in order that they may learn
 of the good work performed by the auxiliary in every quarter of the globe.
 General Secretary William S. Langford
 and Miss Cornelia Jay, who has charge in this city, spoke on behalf of the members of the auxiliary in New York.

Editor Moore Lost His Case.
 PARKERSBURG, Nov. 27.—The supreme court has decided the damage
 suit of Editor A. B. Moore against the Ohio River railroad adversely to the plaintiff. Moore secured a mileage
 book for a man who, it was alleged, had
 that the ticketholder was not a newspaper employee the railroad demanded
 his pass, and failing to get it, ejected
 him from the train. Moore thereupon
 brought suit for damages.

More Troops From Spain.

HAVANA, Nov. 27.—The steamship
 Alfonso XII has arrived here from Spain with a battalion of marines, consisting of 38 officers and 850 men. The steamship also had on board 500 recruits for the different battalions on the field. Upon landing, the newly arrived troops were reviewed by General Ar-
 derius, the military commander here.
 The ceremony was witnessed by a large
 and enthusiastic crowd. A reception
 followed the review.

To Further Restrict Immigration.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—Hon. Samuel W.
 McCall and Senator Lodge have been selected by the executive committee of
 the Immigration Restriction League to introduce into congress a bill prepared
 by the league to further restrict immigration. This bill adds to the classes at present excluded the following: "All persons between the ages of 14 and 60
 who cannot both read and write the English language or some other language."

The Prisoner Honorably Discharged.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—George Fresche,
 the young Institute of Technology student and son of a wealthy St. Louis
 merchant, whose trial on a charge of
 larceny has been postponed several
 times to enable the government to bring
 in their alleged principal witness, has been honorably discharged by Judge
 Burke.

BELDEN LOST HIS SUIT.

New York Court of Appeals Decided For Burke.

$8,000,000 INVOLVED IN THE CASE.

Belden and Other Hocking Valley Bond-
 holders Had Accused Burke and Associates of Misappropriation of Money.
 Much Interest in the Case in Ohio.

ALBANY, Nov. 27.—The court of appeals has decided in favor of the Central Trust company in the suit of
 James J. Belden and other bondhold-
 ers of the Columbus and Hocking Valley railroad to recover $8,000,000, said
 to have been misappropriated by Judge
 Stevenson Burke and his associate
 directors. The decision of the general
 term in favor of Belden is reversed and
 that of the special term, dismissing the
 case, affirmed, with costs.

Great interest was felt throughout
 Ohio regarding the outcome of this case. The story on which the case rests is to the effect that it was provided in the
 bond issue of 1886 secured by mortgage
 to the Central Trust company, that in case of non-payment of interest the
 principal was to become due, at the option of the bondholder, at the expiration of six months. The total issue was $14,500,000, of this amount $6,500,000
 the directors ordered should be received
 to pay for outstanding bonds. The remaining $8,000,000 was to be sold and
 the proceeds devoted to double-tracking
 the road and in making other improvements. The $8,000,000 in bonds was delivered to the Central Trust company
 and the company was authorized to deliver them to President Green and Vice President Burke of the railroad company.

By an order signed by Green and Burke the Central Trust company was directed to deliver to Burke $4,111
 bonds. These bonds were sold and the proceeds used in paying an indebtedness incurred by Burke and his associates to Winslow, Lanier & Co.

The general term assumed that the bonds were not used as the covenant
 provided they should be used.
 Belden and other stockholders accused Burke and his associates, including Charles Hickok, Chauncey H. Andrews, William J. Hitchcock, William J. Kinne, Wallace C. Andrews and
 other officers and directors of the road,
 of conspiring and disposing of the $8,000,000 without expending it on the road.

The interesting points touched upon
 were, first, in the claim of Belden that Burke and his associates used the proceeds derived from the sale of the
 bonds to pay their personal obligations
 incurred in getting control of the railway lines in the Hocking valley and
 the adjacent coal fields, when in the mortgage trust deed accorded by the Central Trust company there was a
 covenant stipulation that the $8,000, 000 should be applied to improving the railway.

The covenant in the mortgage trust
 deed was worded to conceal the alleged fraudulent purpose. Burke was held personally liable, first, because he was
 the company; second, the covenant
 created a trust and a division of the funds was a fraudulent breach of trust; third, Burke was the vice president to whom the bonds were delivered
 and with his associates received the
 entire benefit of the diversion.

The court failed to sustain these
 points and the further point that men
 who purchase corporation bonds secured
 by mortgages on corporate property are entitled to have that security sustained
 and protected by the courts.

A Serious Railroad Accident.

 feet and badly hurt. They live in Ft.
 Wayne. Others hurt were: Stockmen
 A. S. Wilson, Morengo, Ia., head cut;

Akron Street Railway Sold.

AKRON, O., Nov. 27.—Information
 has been received here to the effect
 that a big deal has been consummated
 in New York, by which the property of the Akron Street Railway company and the Akron General Electric company has been sold to a New York
 syndicate, of which General Samuel
 Thomas is the head. The purchase
 price is understood to have been $1, 200,000.

 11 last, has commenced in the common pleas court before Judge Schaeffer.

Thomas Collins, a farmer, living north
 of Lima, was arrested on an affidavit
 made in Justice Graham's court by James Alexander, charging him with assault
 upon his daughter, Emma Alexander,
 aged 20 years. Collins is a married man
 and a neighbor of Alexander's.

Frank Cobb, of Oberlin, has been arrested for assault with intent to kill. A few days ago he struck Charles Marshall
 over the head with a club. The two men got in a fight over the ownership of some land. Marshall is unconscious and may not recover.

James A. Oursler, a contractor from Otway, who has been building a number
 of residences in Portsmouth, has been
 arrested on a charge of embezzlement.
 The complainant is Mrs. Joseph W.
 Mitchell, who alleges that Oursler secured $500 from her, ostensibly to make a payment on material for a house he was building for her, and converted it to his
 own use.

The Indian Goes Free.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—Upon the request of Jacob Horn, the father of
 little Johnny Horn, who was killed by
 the Indian, Mohawk, of Buffalo Bill's
 troupe, State's Attorney Kerr has nol-
 prossed the case against the Indian.
 The father wrote that upon investigating the case thoroughly, he is convinced the deed was wholly accidental.

 filed with the city clerk under the resolution to improve Avondale street between the

 after the improvement herein provided for shall have been made.

Sec. 2. That the improvement of the said
 Avondale street, from Bank street to North

 said resolution and the plans and specifica-

 the necessary culverts and drains.

Sec. 3. That the expense of said improvement, including damages, if any be assessed in favor of any land owner, together with in-

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., WEDNESDAY, NOV. 27.

For President,
WILLIAM MCKINLEY,
 Of Ohio.

TWO THANKSGIVINGS.

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving, and as
 becomes a patriotic American city
 filled with that feeling which has
 made the nation what it is, East Liverpool will give thanks after the most
 are enjoying the occasion with enthusiasm and zeal, they can not but recall
 another Thanksgiving when there was
 its.

That was two years ago. President
 had been in office long enough to
 frighten the public, and East Liver-
 assertion that a Democratic administration would mean Democratic times
 had become a reality, but not as the
 prophesied. Where they had promised
 country, and this place with its great
 hundreds of people who never knew
 the real meaning of want were suffering, while thousands who never believed they would be so stricken were wondering how the wolf was to be kept from the door. It was a sad time for the city, and to this day
 the suffering occasioned by the idiotic policy of the Democracy is remembered and deplored. The people have not forgotten that dark, gloomy
 Thanksgiving, when starvation stalked
 with awful tread through the city and
 thousands wondered where it was all
 going to end.

Now it is different. There has been
 a change. The people who supported
 the policy of panic and destruction
 campaign prevarications through
 box three years ago, into the light of
 their own intelligence and understanding. The school of experience
 has taught them a bitter lesson, and
 learned to know that they were de-
 ceived and hoodwinked into giving Grover Cleveland an office, and like
 the Americans that they are, endowed
 with the power to choose for themselves, they will soon relegate him to
 oblivion and raise in his stead a man
 well worthy their support and respect. As a step to this they have
 polls with mighty outpourings of
 look upon Thanksgiving tomorrow as
 a day of gladness. The light of prosperity seems about to dawn, and there
 is reason for rejoicing. Eat, drink
 and be merry for there is no better
 depth of its sorrow, and with judi-
 cious legislation will rise from the
 it really is, one of the most enterpris-
 ing and energetic of the smaller cities
 of the land. Its people are right, but
 they cannot stand against the thirst
 for foreign prosperity at the expense
 of our own, as it was shown in the last
 Democratic congress. It is the duty
 of all to be thankful, from the hum-
 blest laborer to the richest capitalist.
 All have shared the trouble, and all
 should have the gladness.

W. A. McGuire, a well known citizen of McKay, O., is of the opinion
 that there is nothing as good for
 as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He
 has used it in his family for several
 keeps a bottle of it in the house. After
 troubled with a severe cough. He
 used other remedies without benefit,
 and then concluded to try the children's medicine and to his delight it
 soon effected a permanent cure.

CONVINCING EVIDENCE SECURED.

 Overheard Turkish Soldiers Talking
 About the Order—Extra Gunboats May

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Times this
 morning publishes an article written at Erzeroum, dated Nov. 9. The correspondent says: "The massacre here
 certainly occurred by the order of the
 authorities at Constantinople. Much
 circumstantial evidence can be pro-

The correspondent of The Times,
 writing from Erzeroum, then proceeds
 heard going on between the Turkish
 soldiers who were guarding his door.
 Their statements were to the effect that
 their officers had ordered them at a
 given signal to massacre the Armenians.
 The correspondent then continues:
 consulate with Mr. Chambers Sunday
 afternoon, Nov. 3, when the new out-
 break took place. The Armenians
 again crowded to the American school.
 A number of persons were killed on
 to 35. The scenes in the cemeteries
 where the victims have been buried by
 the sufferers have been heartrending.
 On Nov. 21 I visited all of the ruined
 bazars, going as far as Serai, but during the entire journey I did not see a
 single Christian."

A Constantinople special says: The
 ambassadors will hold another formal
 to take to put an end to the so-called
 "shooting" of the port.
 The impression prevails that if the
 firmans are not very soon granted the
 extra gunboats will pass the Darda-
 nelles without the port's permission,
 even if they have to be conveyed
 through by battleships stripped for action.

In fact, nobody here can see how the
 powers can retreat from the position
 they have assumed without serious loss
 are based on treaty rights, which are
 admitted by the sultan and his advisers.
 In some quarters it is said that the
 sultan's objection to granting the firmans
 is really caused by his belief that
 he can do so with impunity, in view of
 the objection raised by Russia to Aus-
 tria's proposal on the subject, and that
 this constituted a difference of opinion
 among the powers.

 whom this view of the affair was submitted said that if the sultan actually
 thought there was any material difference of opinion among the powers he
 would do well to get rid of that belief

Convicts Assault Penitentiary Officials at Jackson, Mich.

JACKSON, Mich., Nov. 27.—A desper-
 ate riot has occurred at the state prison.
 intendent Coffey of the shirt factory
 club, and Foreman Miller slugged with
 whatever the convicts could lay hands
 on. The enraged prisoners also smashed
 a score of machines with hammers
 and iron bars before they were controlled.

There were 100 convicts at work in
 caused by Foreman Miller threatening
 to report Dick Huntley, a 30-year man,
 for not doing his work properly. Hunt-
 ley secured a club and without warning knocked Miller down. The other
 officers rushed to the foreman's assistance, when several convicts took a
 hand and the riot became general, but
 the prisoners ceased their murderous

THE PRISONER HONORABLY DISCHARGED.
 BOSTON, Nov. 27.—George Fresche,
 the young Institute of Technology student and son of a wealthy St. Louis
 merchant, whose trial on a charge of
 larceny has been postponed several
 in their alleged principal witness, has
 Burke.

He was carried to a physician's office,
 and a consultation was held. His chest was found to be caved in by their feet.
 His head and body were terribly beaten, and the sight of the left eye is gone. It is one of the most cowardly acts ever perpetrated in this section of the state.

Yenell is editing a reform paper, and has frequently been the victim of foul play. He is alive and may recover, but that is doubtful.

SYMPATHY FOR CUBA.

Monster Mass Meeting in New York Presided Over by Editor Dana.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Cooper union
 was crowded with a large and enthusiastic audience last night, of sympathizers with the Cuban insurgents.
 Charles A. Dana presided and made
 the opening address, eulogizing the late
 Jose Marti and expressing strong sympathy with the Cuban cause.

 Congressman Amos Cummings, Governors McIntyre of Colorado, Culbertson of Texas, Clarence King, Ethan
 Allen, Martin T. McMahon, Rev. William S. Rainsford, William F. Ball,
 mayor of Fargo, Dak.; ex-Governor R.
 A. Alger of Michigan, Governor Roger
 Allen of North Dakota, United States
 Senator William E. Chandler, Augustus W. Peters, Governor Upham of Wisconsin, Patrick Egan and Andrew
 Carnegie. All the letters expressed
 sympathy with the cause of Cuba.

 speech, advocating recognition of the Cubans by this country. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:
 Resolved, That we extend our sympathy to the Cuban people in their
 struggle for freedom and independence,
 and we call on the congress and the
 president of these United States, and
 request them to grant belligerent rights

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL MISSIONS.

 ing in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of
 the Foreign Nations' mission of the
 in session here. Bishop Brewer of Montana presided. Bishop Graves of China reported the great spread of
 brought encouraging reports of the extent of the work performed in China.
 Rev. Isaac Dooman of Japan told of the growth of the Protestant Episcopal faith
 in the island.

He assured his hearers that his
 his return in order that they may learn
 of the good work performed by the auxiliary in every quarter of the globe.
 General Secretary William S. Langford
 and Miss Cornelia Jay, who has charge in this city, spoke on behalf of the members of the auxiliary in New York.

Editor Moore Lost His Case.

PARKERSBURG, Nov. 27.—The supreme court has decided the damage
 suit of Editor A. B. Moore against the Ohio River railroad adverse to the
 that the ticketholder was not a news-
 his pass, and failing to get it, ejected
 him from the train. Moore thereupon

More Troops From Spain.

HAVANA, Nov. 27.—The steamship
 Alfonso XII has arrived here from Spain with a battalion of marines, consisting of 58 officers and 850 men.
 The steamship also had on board 500 recruits for the different battalions on the field. Upon landing, the newly arrived
 troops were reviewed by General Ar-
 derius, the military commander here.
 The ceremony was witnessed by a large
 and enthusiastic crowd. A reception
 followed the review.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—Hon. Samuel W.
 McCall and Senator Lodge have been
 introduce into congress a bill prepared
 migration. This bill adds to the classes at present excluded the following: "All persons between the ages of 14 and 60
 who cannot both read and write the English language or some other language."

BELDEN LOST HIS SUIT.

New York Court of Appeals Decided For Burke.

$8,000,000 INVOLVED IN THE CASE.

Belden and Other Hocking Valley Bond-
 holders Had Accused Burke and Associates of Misappropriation of Money.
 Much Interest in the Case in Ohio.

ALBANY, Nov. 27.—The court of
 appeals has decided in favor of the Central Trust company in the suit of
 James J. Belden and other bondhold-
 ers of the Columbus and Hocking Valley railroad to recover $8,000,000, said
 to have been misappropriated by Judge
 Stevenson Burke and his associate
 directors. The decision of the general
 term in favor of Belden is reversed and
 that of the special term, dismissing the
 case, affirmed, with costs.

Great interest was felt throughout Ohio regarding the outcome of this case.

The story on which the case rests is
 to the effect that it was provided in the
 bond issue of 1886 secured by mortgage
 to the Central Trust company, that in
 principal was to become due, at the option of the bondholder, at the expiration of six months. The total issue was
 the directors ordered should be received
 to pay for outstanding bonds. The re-
 the proceeds devoted to double-tracking
 the road and in making other improvements. The $8,000,000 in bonds was delivered to the Central Trust company
 and the company was authorized to deliver them to President Green and Vice President Burke of the railroad company.

By an order signed by Green and
 directed to deliver to Burke 6,411
 bonds. These bonds were sold and the
 proceeds used in paying an indebtedness incurred by Burke and his associates to Winslow, Lanier & Co.

The general term assumed that the
 bonds were not used as the covenant
 provided they should be used.
 Belden and other stockholders accused Burke and his associates, including Charles Hickok, Channey H. Andrews, William J. Hitchcock, William J. Kane, William C. Andrews and
 other officers and directors of the road,
 of conspiring and disposing of the $8,000,000 without expending it on the
 road.

The interesting points touched upon
 were, first, in the claim of Belden that Burke and his associates used the proceeds derived from the sale of the
 bonds to pay their personal obligations
 incurred in getting control of the rail-
 way lines in the Hocking valley and
 the adjacent coal fields, when in the
 mortgage trust deed accepted by the Central Trust company there was a
 covenant stipulation that the $8,000,- 000 should be applied to improving the
 railway.

 deed was worded to conceal the alleged
 fraudulent purpose. Burke was held
 personally liable, first, because he was
 created a trust and a division of the
 funds was a fraudulent breach of trust; third, Burke was the vice president to whom the bonds were delivered
 and with his associates received the
 entire benefit of the diversion.

The court failed to sustain these
 points and the further point that men
 who purchase corporation bonds secured
 by mortgages on corporate property are
 entitled to have that security sustained
 and protected by the courts.

A Serious Railroad Accident.

LIMA, O., Nov. 27.—An eastbound freight train on the Pennsylvania road has broken in two and crashed through near Richey. Conductor J. P. Herron was thrown through a caboose window and badly hurt. Flagman Wass was thrown from the top of the caboose 50
 feet and badly hurt. They live in Ft.
 A. S. Wilson, Moreno, Ia., head cut;
 N. J. Vance, Marietta, O., left side hurt; J. D. Weber, Decatur, Ind., shoulder broken.

Akron Street Railway Sold.

AKRON, O., Nov. 27.—Information
 has been received here to the effect
 that a big deal has been consummated
 in New York, by which the property of the Akron Street Railway company and the Akron General Electric company has been sold to a New York
 syndicate, of which General Samuel
 Thomas is the head. The purchase
 price is understood to have been $1,- 200,000.

SMALL OHIO HAPPENINGS.

Peter Brady has been appointed postmaster at Bellevue.
 A. E. Koskroff, proprietor of the Delaware house, at Delaware, attempted suicide. He is in a critical condition.

Charles Hoyt, a petty thief, escaped from the Portsmouth workhouse. This is the fifteenth escape from that institution since July 1.
 An infant of John Schneller of Portsmouth was fatally injured by being thrown from a high chair by a little playmate. Its back was broken.

Leopold Mark of New Richmond, engineer at the Clermont woolen mills, was packing a valve of the boiler when it burst and scalded him badly from his waist to his feet.

The trial of George Karg, on the charge of murdering Ab Wise at the county
 infirmary at Findlay on the night of May 11 last, has commenced in the common pleas court before Judge Schaeferberger.

Thomas Collins, a farmer, living north
 of Lima, was arrested on an affidavit
 made in Justice Graham's court by James
 Alexander, charging him with assault
 upon his daughter, Emma Alexander,
 aged 20 years. Collins is a married man
 and a neighbor of Alexander's.

Frank Cobb, of Oberlin, has been arrested for assault with intent to kill. A
 few days ago he struck Charles Marshall
 over the head with a club. The two men
 got into a fight over the ownership of some land. Marshall is unconscious and
 may not recover.

James A. Oursler, a contractor from Otway, who has been building a number
 of residences in Portsmouth, has been
 arrested on a charge of embezzlement.
 The complainant is Mrs. Joseph W.
 Mitchell, who alleges that Oursler secured $800 from her, ostensibly to make payment on material for a house he was
 building for her, and converted it to his
 own use.

The Indian Goes Free.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 27.—Upon the request of Jacob Horn, the father of
 little Johnny Horn, who was killed by
 the Indian, Mohawk, of Buffalo Bill's
 troupe, State's Attorney Kerr has nol-
 prossed the case against the Indian.
 The father wrote that upon investigat-
 ing the case thoroughly, he is con-

THANKSGIVING

E WALK on starry fields
And yet ignore the daisies;
Our time from pleasure stealing,
So unobtrusive many a joy
We pass by and forget it.
But worry strives to own our lives
And conquers if we let it.

There's not a day in all the year
But holds some hidden pleasure,
And looking back joys oft appear
To trim the past's wide measure.
But blessings are like friends, I hold,
Who love and labor near us.
We ought to raise our notes of praise
While living hearts can hear us.

Fall many a blessing wears the guise
Of worry or of trouble.
Forsaking is the soul and wise
Who knows the mask is double.
But he who has the faith and strength
To thank his God for sorrow
Has found a joy without alloy
To gladden every morrow.

We ought to make the moments notes
Of happy, glad Thanksgiving;
The hours and days a silent phrase
Of music we are living.
And so the theme should swell and grow,
As weeks and months pass o'er us,
And rise sublime at this good time,
A grand Thanksgiving chorus.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

IN BLACK AND WHITE

A THANKSGIVING STORY BY MARY KYLE DALLAS.

"All aboard!" shouted the brakemen, taking the cry up one after the other and making something like the chorus of a glee of it. "All aboard!"

Everybody plunged into the cars as though the end of the world had come and this were the last train to heaven.

Last of all a very lovely girl with her arms full of parcels and her hands occupied with the inevitable traveling bag and umbrella was lifted, pulled, pushed and otherwise assisted to the platform of the already moving car.

As she entered three young men sprang up at once as does "Jack in the box," and she had but to choose her seat, with a "Thank you" and a smile, distributed to all three, and the one who was favored by the acceptance of his proffer was envied by the others. There are girls so sweet—

"YOU'VE TOLD HER, LETTY," HE SAID. "Other women know it as well as men do—their own personality strengthens them with flowers of courtesy. Mahala's face was, in that sense, her fortune."

She had taught in a public school for several years, not from necessity, but in that commendable spirit of independence common to the daughters of New England families. But that was done with now. She had resigned her position and was going home not only to spend Thanksgiving, but to begin the preparations for her wedding.

The course of true love had run smoothly in her case. Nobody objected to her choice; there was nothing but good feeling all around.

"No one could fail to like Edward Percival or my own people. My own people are so nice," she said to herself. "I am so proud of father, so fond of my darling brother, and Enos, oh, my splendid brother! Sometimes I think he is dearest of them all. And the brightest, best, sweetest little girl in the world is sister Letty. It ought to be enough for any girl to have such home people, and besides that I am engaged to marry a man like Edward Percival. What a happy girl I am! What a happy girl!"

Soon she fell to dwelling on the perfection of her future husband and retracing the chain of incidents that led to their acquaintance. It came about thus:

Two or three years previous her brother was asking himself what business or profession he should pursue, disliking the idea of farming, and certainly that did not seem what Enos was made for.

His mother had hoped that he would have a liking for preaching and study theology. "I should like Enos to be a dominie," she had said, and Enos himself was thinking of the law, when a runaway accident occurred, and it came to pass that Enos saved Miss Adelaide Percival's life at the risk of his own. Mr. Percival, in his gratitude, had offered Enos a position in the bank of which he was president, and since then the young man had been made cashier, a wonderful thing for so young a man as Enos. Edward Percival had become his friend and had brought home to visit and fell in love with Mahala—so he vowed—at first sight. And, ah, how fond she was of him!

"I think it is because father and mother are such good people that the Lord has blessed their children," said Mahala to herself, smiling gently as she gazed toward the roofs of her native village, now visible in the distance.

"Alumbridge!" shrieked the brakeman. It was the popular pronunciation of Elmbridge. Mahala gathered up her parcels and stepped out upon the platform. Her trunk stood there, but she saw no wagon waiting for her.

"Is the train early, Mr. Dobble?" she asked the baggage master.

"No, Miss Mahala," he replied; "the train is a little late. Your wagon is yonder under the trees." Mahala hurried across the intervening space. A girl's voice came to her from behind the curtains, which were let down. "Mahala, that you, dear? I walked here because Stupid seemed restless. Sorry to give Mr. Dobble so much trouble."

As Mahala took her seat beside her sister Letty flung her thin young arms about her neck and gave her a long hug and a lingering kiss, and Mahala felt a tear upon her cheek.

"Why, Letty—so glad to see me as all that?" she cried.

Letty shook the reins and drove on, but Mahala heard her sob.

"Why, darling," she said, "has our old Stupid been restive enough to frighten you after all his quiet years?" The girl's answer was a strange one.

"Mahala, he hasn't. I only said that I didn't want to drive up where folks could see me because my face is all swollen up with crying. Stupid poked along just as usual, but it wouldn't surprise me if he had run away. Black Peter bit me this morning. Bit and scratched me, and I haven't seen him since. Mahala, it wouldn't astonish me if you were to take out a dagger and stab me to the heart. It won't."

"Sister Letty," said Mahala, "I am afraid you think we shall not be as dear to each other after I am married. I believe that is what is upsetting you. But there you are mistaken, darling. You will only gain a brother."

"A brother?" repeated Letty, and broke into a fit of hysterical sobbing.

"What is it?—Is mother ill—or—or—"

"Mother isn't sick."

"No, it's not that."

"Father?" whispered Mahala.

"Father has his health," said Letty.

"And you are here, it's not you. It must be Enos. Oh, Letty, it is Enos!" wailed Mahala. "My darling brother, my own dear boy—tell me."

"No," said Letty. "I almost swore I wouldn't until you got home. I guess you feel bad enough to expect anything, now, if that's what they mean by preparing people. They said I could prepare you a little. I guess I have."

They were now in sight of the Pynchon homestead. The afterglow of the sunset was a soft, primrose yellow. The old house, situated on a high elevation, and the bare and graceful branches of the elm trees about it lay black against the yellow, as Letty drove up to the gate and jumped out upon the stone block.

If terror could have killed her, Mahala must have dropped dead before she reached the porch and saw a figure emerge from the darkness of the house. It was her father, and she fell into his arms unable even to ask a question.

"You've told her, Letty," he said reproachfully.

"I haven't, pa. I prepared her, and this is the result," responded Letty, bursting into tears.

But Mahala was already able to stand on her feet and be led into the parlor. If she had had any doubt that the calamity was serious, this would have convinced her of it—this solemn entrance into the best room.

"Trouble has come upon us, daughter," said the old man.

"I have guessed it. Enos is dead?" gasped Mahala.

"No, child," said the father. "The trouble that has come to this house is not the loss of a son, but the loss of a daughter. Your brother has betrayed the bank and is off him. He has robbed the bank and is off with the hard earnings of widows and orphans. Enos—our Enos—is a traitor and phantasm."

"A cowardly thief."

But at that Mahala sprang to her feet. "If an angel should tell me that," she cried, "I'd know it was a lie. Whom have you been listening to, father? Who has dared say such things of the son you know so well to be good and upright?"

The old man turned away, sat down beside the table, folded his arms and hid his face in them. Mahala, with flashing eyes and burning cheeks, turned to Letty.

"Who has been telling father these falsehoods?" she asked.

"Nobody told him," Letty answered. "Everybody keeps away as if we had the plague and they knew it. We read it in the paper this morning. Oh, Mahala, it was such an awful moment!"

"You don't believe it, do you, Letty?" asked Mahala, so in her tones. "You don't believe it for Enos?"

"You can read it for yourself, sister," said Letty, taking a newspaper from a little secretary built into a dark corner behind the door after the remarkable fashion that obtains in most farmhouses. "You can read it if you can bear to, Mahala."

"I'm not afraid. Lies without any foundation, spiteful hints and innuendoes that have frightened you all, I feel sure." And Mahala seized the paper, marched straight to her room, lit a lamp and began to read:

"Through the efforts of a bright member of our staff we find ourselves in a position to give the full particulars of the robbery of the Longtown Savings bank in the advance of any of our contemporaries. Last evening the cashier, Znos Pynchon, the son of a highly respected resident of Elmbridge, absconded with all the cash in the bank and many negotiable papers, having previously falsified his accounts to an amount not yet definitely known."

"He went away, as usual, on his bicycle, and the facts were not discovered until next day, when the assistant cashier entered upon the discharge of his duties."

"What makes this breach of trust more painful is that Enos Pynchon was an intimate friend of the bank president, Mr. Cyrus Percival, and that the sister of the guilty man, Miss Mahala Pynchon, was about to be married to Mr. Edward Percival, the president's only son. Of course this engagement is now at an end."

"Young Mr. Percival and the worthy assistant cashier have accompanied the detectives who are in pursuit of the fugitive."

Mahala had said that she would not believe an angel who told her an evil tale of her brother, but as she read this column of the Elmbridge Gazette it had the effect upon her that anything printed in black and white has on most people.

"It is too cruel—too cruel!" she cried, casting the paper from her hand and flinging herself across her bed. "How could heaven be so cruel to us?"

Thus she lay, dry-eyed and feverish, until the door opened and Letty came softly to the bedside and began to remove the hat which Mahala had forgotten she still wore.

"Do come to tea, dear," the girl pleaded tearfully. "Mother ought to have some. Perhaps you can coax her to take it; I can't." Mahala complied. She kissed her mother, but she dared not meet each other's eyes.

When the meal was done, they all sat about the room and waited until the last train came in, and though assuredly they expected nothing they were conscious of a new despair when it was gone.

The next day Mahala and her parents sat together in the living room, as people at sea gather together in the cabin of a vessel when a storm is raging. They heard the church bells ring, and the wheels of carriages on their way to the Thanksgiving service.

"I shan't never have the face to go to meeting again," said Mrs. Pynchon. They were the first words she had spoken since breakfast time. And again there was silence, for they would not speak of that of which their thoughts were full and had no interest in anything else in the wide, wide world.

As the evening train came in Mahala thought of how she had looked from the windows of the car the night before, thinking of her happy home and her lover—thinking herself the happiest girl alive. Now she believed herself to be the most miserable.

"Light a lamp," said old Mr. Pynchon. "If we cannot rejoice on this Thanksgiving day, at least we can pray." He took a Bible from the shelf where it was kept and opened it and read aloud the psalm he thought most fitting. Then the women knelt, each before a chair, and the old man, standing, lifted his voice in prayer.

He had intended to make it a petition for mercy, a prayer for the sinful and sorrowful in general, but his heart was too full, and he soon found himself uttering agonized petitions for his poor, lost boy.

He prayed with his hands clasped, his eyes closed. The sobs of the kneeling women filled the room, and some one who had opened the door stood, one hand on the lock, the other on the door knob, gazing at the scene with astonished eyes.

"O God, have mercy upon my poor, wandering Enos. Though he has brought his parents' gray hairs with sorrow to the grave, forgive him, O God, forgive him as I forgive him." Then he opened his eyes.

Enos stood before him in the doorway, and as he stepped into the room remarked: "Father, that was a powerful prayer, and it seems to have been felt so by the family, but I must ask, respectfully and reverently of course, how came I to be so much praying for and crying over? I'm not aware of having done anything but miss my Thanksgiving dinner, and that was my misfortune, not my fault. Much obliged, father, but—"

But here he passed, smothered into silence by embraces, kisses, showers of tears, little cries of rapture. His mother, Mahala and Letty all had their arms about him at once.

The presence of Enos, his voice, his manner, told them that whatever had happened he was guilty of no crime.

The old man, shouting "Thank God!" over and over again, rested his hand upon his head, and it was Letty who at last lifted her sweet, shrill young voice, putting the explanation into a nutshell.

"Why, didn't you know, Enos," she cried, "that the Elmbridge Gazette said that you robbed the Longtown bank, and that Mahala and Ed couldn't be married now? And we all believed it. That's why pa prayed for you and we cried. And a nice Thanksgiving day we've had of it!"

"I heard that the Elmbridge Gazette mixed names the first day," said Enos, "but I understand they contradicted it all today, with apologies to everybody."

"Perhaps they have," said old Mr. Pynchon, wiping the tears from his eyes. "But I reckon we left today's Gazette under the mat, where the boy put it. We didn't think of it."

Letty ran out of doors and came in with the paper. The correction was there in black and white.

The editors regretted that, owing to the mistake of a person whose connection with the office had been severed forever and who interviewed a deaf janitor, since no one else would say anything on the subject, "Mr. Enos Pynchon, cashier of the Longtown bank, whose lovely sister was about to be united in marriage to Edward Percival, the only son of the president, had been spoken of as committing the dastardly crime of which the assistant cashier, a young man of dissipated habits, was really guilty."

The rest of the paper was devoted to laudations of the Pynchon and Percival families, collectively and individually.

"Poor Bill!" said Enos. "Drink and a woman—the old story. But Percival and I caught him and brought him back. He had most of what he had stolen about him, and the bank has lost next to nothing. They will not prosecute him. He has done for himself, that's all. Not a word need have leaked out, but for that glibbling old janitor. But—you believed it—my own folks believed that of me?"

"I've fixed 'em," he said. "I ain't no literary man myself, but my brother reads the Alumbridge Gazette constant, and after dinner he showed me that paper full of lies. So I left early and went over to the office where they was all to work for tomorrow, with their coats off, and I took it out of their hides. I'm Pynchon's man," I said. "What's these lies you've been telling about my folks? All contradicted," says they, 'in this morning's paper.'"

"To jiggers with contradictions," says I, and I said in the floor is strewn with them and this on my best pants is their gore, but I don't begrudge it."

"Ah, there was one who believed in me," cried Enos as he held out his hand to Sam, who gave it a pump-handle shake of the most vigorous sort.

"You shall have a new suit, Sam," said Mr. Pynchon. "I wish I'd been along to help you."

"What's become of Percival?" inquired Enos. "He went back into the road after he reached the gate, and as I supposed he had caught sight of Mahala somewhere I came in without him."

At this moment a window was lifted from without.

Mahala stepped into the kitchen. In a moment her betrothal ring was on her finger and a dreadful little letter that it had almost broken her heart to write in the fire. Before it had done blazing Edward had followed her, and his arm was about her waist and their lips met.

And now the whole family came trooping into the kitchen, Mrs. Pynchon crying cheerfully: "We must eat Thanksgiving dinner to-day if we have it at midnight. All hands to help me." And every one set to work with a will. The turkey was roasted and the vegetables cooked, the pies warmed and the cranberry jelly turned out. The elder foamed in the jugs, and the red checked apples shone in the lamp, and all was served by 9 of the clock precisely.

Enos, whose word was law that night, declared that his champion, Sam, must sit down with them, and Sam, nothing loath, took his place and did justice to the feast, and never were more thankful hearts than those that beat within the bosoms of the assembled Pynchons as they bowed their heads to listen to Mr. Pynchon's simple grace.

And Mahala, sitting there beside her lover, with all her beloved kinsfolk near, felt that strange and terrible Thanksgiving day become in an instant exactly like a bad dream from which she had awakened and became the happiest girl in the world once more.

A WARNING TO THE GOBBLER.

O Gobbler Turk, O Gobbler Turk, Why hold your head so high? Ere long there will be awful work— The ax and hour are nigh.

Be careful not to be pharisaical in your thankfulness. "Lord, I thank thee that I am not as other men," is not a good sentiment at any time, least of all on the last Thursday in November, yet it is as frequently felt and even expressed now as it was 1,900 years ago in Jerusalem. "I'm glad I'm not like some folks" is the American form.

If you can see no reason why you should be thankful, hasten to look about you. You will find so many who are worse off than you that you will soon begin to be glad your lot in life is as pleasant as it is.

The sea nettle stings its prey to death by means of a poison secreted in its tentacles.

HE GIVES THANKS.

AS thankful as any turkey still alive in all the land.

That we've got a daisy yawning bigger every hour.

And a navy Kaiser Wilyum thinks is going to be a power.

That the starry flag's respected everywhere it gets unfurled.

That our credit still is solid in the countries of the world.

That the gold and silver fellers, both a-jawin for their rights.

That the fine ole sicile business jest at present's layin low.

That the wimmen still air givin men at least a little show.

That the presidential election doesn't come in ninety-five.

That I've mastered cycle ridin and am hull and still alive.

But for one thing, honest Injun naw, I can not thankful feel—

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Junius Henri Browne on the New and the Old Religion.

(Copyright, 1895, by American Press Association.)

The New England custom, which has been adopted throughout the United States, of appointing a special day, the last Thursday in November, of Thanksgiving and prayer, is now observed, I think, by every denomination, services being held in the morning in all the churches. These services are much less attended, however, than they formerly were, because the day has recently lost favor theologically or religiously and gained favor socially. People who feel that they should give thanks to any supernatural power may not recognize any one day more than another for so doing, and consequently may refrain from observing any special day. Whatever the cause, Thanksgiving has lost much of its popular hold so far as ecclesiastical ceremony is concerned. But as a day for the reunion of kindred, near or remote, at a bountiful dinner it is highly revered, and the beautiful custom more and more widely followed. New England has been called the brain, sometimes the conscience of the republic. It has certainly done a good deal toward setting the land. New Englanders have immigrated all over the land.

The custom is so human, so benevolent, so attractive that descendants of the Dutch, Germans, Huguenots, Scotch-Irish and other races that have also peopled the republic have imitated the New England example and found enjoyment and strength and fresh inspiration in it.

In New England in the early days religion was mostly theology, theologic pur and simple, a thing of entire faith, of absolute dogma, the vigorous interpretation of certain intensely earnest men who felt themselves called upon to expound the Scriptures. They considered it their bounden duty to be mercilessly logical, whether or not they offended reason or shocked humanity. It mattered not if they portrayed the Deity as a monster. He was what he was; what the eternal word declared him to be. There could be no palliation of the word. If God appeared pitiless, cruel, malignant, and he was really just, good, compassionate, and they, in their narrowness and bigotry, labored to reconcile those glaring contradictions. Think nature and common sense, this so called religion, the most depraved form of theology, has long since grown obsolete. Its existence at any time seems to the last quarter of the century altogether impossible. During the last 50 years, the whole educated world, the western world especially, has grown less and less theological and more religious. We see this continually on every side. Creed is no longer fixed and binding. The sense of duty to our fellows, the spirit of charity has strengthened and expanded until every class and every individual, however alien or humble, is now included. We are beginning at last to recognize that mankind is but one vast human family; that vice and crime arise from stress of circumstances rather than from malevolence or deliberate choice; that people are not so wicked as they are unfortunate and need cheering, sympathy, development.

MEALS FOR CLERKS.

EMPLOYEES OF LARGE PARIS STORES
DINE IN THE BUILDING.A Tremendous Business In Itself When You Consider the Meals That Are Prepared and Served—Everything Is Done
In First Class Style, but It Pays.

The refectories of the vast department stores or "bazaars" of Paris are among the most curious sights of the French capital. As soon as the Bon Marche and the Louvre—dear to the hearts of all American women who make the "grand tour"—and prototypes of the colossal establishments in New York and adjacent cities—began to assume great importance their projectors were confronted with the question, "How shall we organize the 'meal times' of these thousands of men and women?"

In France "lunch," as understood in America, is unknown. Every person, gentle and simple, makes of the early morning repast simply a "break-fast" and no more. A bowl of coffee and a large piece of crisp bread for the workman and woman; the smoking chocolate in a Sevres cup and the brioches which melt in the month for the millionaire—these are the only distinctions. For many generations the French have recognized that it is unhealthy to take a hearty meal at 6, 7 or 8 in the morning. So they wait until 11 or 12, and millions wait until 1 o'clock before tasting the first substantial meal of the day. Dinner, a second meal of two or three courses, and in no wise resembling the light repast which Americans know as "supper," comes at 7, 8 or even 9, according to the circumstances of the person. Concierges, or house porters, generally dine at 9, winter and summer, and sit over their meal an hour or two, chatting and laughing. At that late hour the whole family is united, and its little affairs are discussed and settled.

With the organization of the "bazaar" came the need of keeping a constant outlook over the hundreds of young men and women in each department, and economizing each moment of their time between the opening hours and the letting down of the great iron shutters before the immense windows at 6 p. m. precisely. It was with a view of this watch over the employees, rather than because of any philanthropic tendencies, that the owners and managers of the largest "bazaars" decided to make it obligatory for all employees to take their meals at noon and night upon the premises.

The bazaar proprietor said, "We must do this, as we do everything else, with an eye to the advertisement." And so they decided to install their refectories very handsomely and to feed their employees well. The idea has paid from the start.

At the Bon Marche spacious and very handsome halls on the fourth story of the enormous edifice are devoted to the restaurant for the employees. Twelve thousand meals are served daily between 11 and 6 o'clock. Men and women eat in separate halls, and are served with the same politeness and attention that they would receive in restaurants or at "lunch counters"—if lunch counters had ever been inflicted on the French.

At the Louvre about the same number of meals are served, and the arrangements are wonderfully complete. The kitchens, with their seductive array of copper saucepans, and the pantries, with the thousands upon thousands of plates and cups, all marked with the lion mark of the house—a majestic lion couchant, with his paws hanging over the letter "L"—and the little army of white capped and aproned cooks, waiters, bottle washers and potato peelers, are well worth a visit. Nor will the visitor get his back chafed. All is conducted with dignity and refinement, as in the house of a gentleman of fortune.

The caldrons in the kitchens are immense. The visitor may look into one kettle which contains mashed potatoes for 8,000 men, and into another in which soup for 5,000 persons is simmering. Then the bottle department is something stupendous. Twelve thousand half bottles of good wine, guaranteed unadulterated, are served out daily. The battalion of bottle washers is busy from dawn to dusk, fetching up the rosy liquid or the yellowish white wine in huge pitchers of wood three feet high, and then bottling it. Both the Louvre and the Bon Marche have wine cellars of vast extent for customers as well as employees.

At the Louvre there are three table services of 700 each for the men. At the Bon Marche a larger number can be fed at once. Each category of employees has its special room. The heads of departments dine together, and never mix with the head clerks of each counter. The waiter clerks eat their boiled beef and roast chicken without being troubled by the presence of their chiefs. Then the humble ones, the packers, the stablemen, the elevator men, the runners, the sweepers and lighters, have their long table, and finally, the garçons, or the men who wear the uniform of the house and accompany the delivery wagons and receive money for purchases, have their particular room, and are allowed to come and go more irregularly than the others because of the peculiar nature of their service. The "ladies" observe the same classification in their eating rooms, and are allowed to gossip as freely as they will. There are no spies; they say what they please on the theory that they are not under the control of the establishment during the time of the repasts.—Paris Letter in Cincinnati Enquirer.

Inclined to Assist Him.

"You don't object to a contributor dropping into poetry once in awhile, I presume?" said the caller, with an affable smile.

"Certainly not, sir. Sit down," replied the editor, pushing the waste basket toward him.—Chicago Tribune.

A Man Whose Wife Carried the Purse—A Bachelor's Wisdom.

Two passengers on a New Haven train approaching the city a few mornings ago conversed together in a loud tone—that is, one of them, who was bluff, hearty, stout and a bachelor, talked in a particularly loud voice, while his companion, who was thin, meek and a benedict, answered in lower tones, which were still not inaudible after the passengers in the seats near by began to take an interest in the conversation.

"No," said the bachelor, "they want me to get married, but I tell them that I've seen enough of married people and I don't care to be tied down the way most of them are. Why, there was a man down in our place did not long ago, and the widow came down to get his wages. He had died on a Friday, and he had a week's wages coming to him. You ought to have seen that widow when she found out how much he got a week. He had been taking his wages home to her every week and giving it all to her to divide, as she supposed. But when she found out that he had been getting $3 a week more all the time she seemed to wish that he were alive again just for a little while, but I guess that he would just as soon have been dead if he had had his choice then. I have heard lots of people say that you ought to take all your money home to your wife, but I don't want any one telling me how much I shall spend for carfare or luncheon."

"Well, there is something in that," said the married man basely. He was a particularly humble looking man, who crouched down in his seat as if he did not dare sit upright, but his wife was far away, and he was emboldened, in the confidences of talk on a suburban train, to reveal his woes. "Now, I do feel badly sometimes when I want to take a man out to luncheon with me and spend some money in entertaining him. If I don't do it, I cannot very well keep his custom, and if I do it, it costs so much money that my wife, who knows just what I receive, thinks I am dreadfully extravagant, and talks to me about the way in which I am wasting money."

"Yes, that's just it," said the loud voiced bachelor. "If you don't spend money you lose trade, and yet you married men are half of you afraid to go around and spend money freely on your customers. I know a man in our store who doesn't dare spend more than 35 cents for luncheon for fear his wife will find it out. They talk about letting your wife spend all your money, but for my part I'd rather spend it myself, and that's why I tell all my friends that I am not going to be married."

Just at this point the train entered the Park avenue tunnel and the voice of the base revealer of secrets, who did not worthily support the part of the married man, was lost in the rumble of the train.—New York Tribune.

AMONG THE LEPERS.

Those of Molokai Have Many Ways of Occupying Their Time.

Here in this sea girt asylum of people afflicted with the most dreaded of known diseases, from which there is no escape but through the portals of death, is presented one of the noblest and brightest pictures of the glory of Christianity, with its marvels of self sacrifice amid surroundings and under circumstances the most depressing. These poor victims, doomed to the ravages of a disease that completes its deadly work in an average of four or five years, the progress of which is marked with the most significant and destructive precision, can alone appreciate at its true worth the Christian heroism of those who are laboring among them, following in the footsteps of the venerated Father Damien, and ready as he was to accept, if need be, the burden of the disease itself in their behalf. And yet unhappiness does not chill the air of Molokai. Death has lost its terror by reason of its very familiarity, and by the silver lining their faith has given the cloud. The Hawaiians are naturally a light hearted people, and even the shadow of jeoprey cannot suppress for long their buoyant temperament.

In Molokai lepers may be found engaged in pleasant pastimes, and among them one may hear the light and cheerful words of greeting and see the sunny smiles. Horse racing, which is a favorite national sport, is indulged in frequently. Nor are the lepers idlers; far from it. They work, while able, in the cultivation of the ground and in other ways, and altogether lead a far pleasanter and more contented life than might be supposed. The improvement of their condition, as compared with what it was when Father Damien took up his residence on the island in 1873, has been chiefly brought about by his influence and the labors of his successors.—Donahoe's Magazine.

Marie de' Medici.

Mario de' Medici, the second wife of Henry IV, who married her in 1600, a year after his divorce from Margaret of Valois, was an Italian beauty, petite and dark. She was hot tempered, and her intolerance of her husband's infidelities caused constant domestic bickering. Her voice was shrill, and when angry she raised it almost to a scream, so that when the king and queen were engaged in a domestic argument everybody in the house knew all about it.

THE OLD GINHOUSE.

Swaying pines have grown around it,
Trumpet vines with garlands bound it.
Yellow jasmynes climbed and crowned it.
Laughing down their green and gold.
Tendrils through each crack escaping
Hide the worn roof widely gaping.
Every hole with beauty draping
In the ginhouse gray and old.

In the morn the squirrels peeping,
O'er the rafters lightly leaping.
With a bark awake the sleeping
Owl, who blinks up, drowsy poled;
And at night, with sudden stirring
From the eaves, the wail light blurring,
Flit the bats with dusky whirling
Round the ginhouse gray and old.

Oh, the days well nigh forgotten,
When along the floor now rotten
Waves and waves of snowy cotton
Oft in billowy beauty rolled;
While the tollers wrought a-singing
Mellow lays that yet are ringing
O'er the tide of time still winging
From the ginhouse gray and old!

Oh, those songs with sweetness teeming,
Chasing care and pain redeeming!
Often still they soothe my dreaming.
By sad memory softly troiled,
And at eve their echoes dying
Haunt me, 'neath the pine trees lying.
Listening to the wind low sighing
Round the ginhouse gray and old.

Lorn is now the old plantation,
Fairest spot in all creation,
Tear-drops choke the sad relation
And its sorrow can't be told.
Poets lit of ruins heary
O'er sea and song and story,
All must yield in beauty's glory
To the jasmyned ginhouse old.

IT WAS EASY TO DO OVER.

How Her Husband's Desk Was Transformed Into a Sideboard.

A suburban woman is obliged to endure the gibes and jeers of her family without retaliation because of her credulous faith in a suburban cabinet maker. An heirloom, on the husband's side, was an old fashioned mahogany desk of more curious than artistic make. It was useless as a desk and not pretty as a piece of old bric-a-brac, so when an idea for its evolution came to her she was doubly pleased. She consulted the suburban cabinet maker, who pronounced her plan entirely feasible and announced himself willing to carry it out before she broached it to her husband.

"Make a buffet, or serving sideboard, out of my great-grandfather's desk!" repeated he, when it was broached. "It can't be done, my dear, and I hate to have it touched too."

"But you don't like it," now coaxed the wife, "and the cabinet maker says it will be very easy to do over. It will be the desk, slightly enlarged, that is all. The lovely doors will be set under the shelf as panels, and those graceful columns will stand out in added beauty as front supports. He will have to add a little wood and introduce a mirror, but all the choice mahogany of the desk will be preserved and show much more effectively."

In the end he was persuaded, and the desk was taken away. Some weeks passed, during which the wife made several visits of inspection to the cabinet shop, seeing parts of the work and acquiescing to various suggestions and additions to the original plan.

The evolved buffet was finally delivered one evening not long ago. Its own father would never have known it. There were six feet of sideboard against the former two of desk, and the original doors and columns were there, but that was all of the first piece of furniture, which had been built on and added to till it stretched half way across the dining room.

The wife turned pale, the husband groaned. "What have you done?" cried one.

"My lost great-grandfather's desk!" exclaimed the other.

The cabinet maker withdrew, after laying a folded paper upon the table. The husband rallied first and opened it. It was a bill of $85 for "work and wood furnished." Curtain!—New York Times.

Frenchmen Believe In Woman's Ability.

Frenchmen are great believers in women's work, and a splendid tribute to the educational value of women has just been paid by Le Temps, which strongly advocates their appointment to all state schools for boys up to the age of 12 years. The military laws of the country cause, it seems, an annual diminution in the number of male schoolmasters, and there seems some danger of the supply ultimately falling far short of the demand. Le Temps suggests this possibility should be anticipated by appointing schoolmistresses, so that young France seems more than likely to be trained by the gentler sex. Woman, says this influential organ, is a far better educator than man, and boys trained by her up to an age when firm discipline is required are certain to have the foundation of stronger and nobler characters laid than when placed from early childhood in the hands of men. This is indeed a tribute to the gentler sex.

Prayerful Revenge.

Francis I of France, being desirous to raise a learned man to the highest dignities of the church, asked him if he was of noble descent. "Your majesty," answered the abbot, "there were three brothers in Noah's ark, but I cannot tell positively from which of them I descended." The witty abbot obtained the appointment.

PAINLESS CHILD BIRTH.

Mrs. FREE, of Greenville, N. Y., says: "I read about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription being so good for a woman with child, so I got two bottles last September, and December 13th I had a twelve pound baby girl. When I was confined I was not sick in any way. I did not suffer any pain, and when the child was born I walked into another room and went to bed. I keep your Extract of Smart-Weed on hand all the time. It was very cold weather and our room was very cold but I did not take any cold, and never had any after pain or any other pain. It was all due to God and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Compound Extract of Smart-Weed. This is the eighth living child and the largest of them all. I suffered everything that flesh could suffer with the other babies. I always had a doctor and then he could not help me very much, but this time my mother and my husband were alone with me. My baby was only seven days old when I got up and dressed and left my room and stayed up all day."

ANCIENT LOG CABIN.

STANDS ON LAND THAT ONCE BELONGED TO WILLIAM PENN.

With Additions It Is One of the Old Manor Houses and Was the Birthplace of Prominent Families—Finding an English Coin of 170 Years Ago.

In the northwestern part of the pretty little town of Media, the county seat of Delaware county, Pa., on a tract of land known as "Star Mount," owned by Samuel W. Powell, is located a genuine curiosity in the form of an old log house, which contains much to interest the antiquarian, and to afford material for the historian. The structure measures 22 feet in length and is 20 feet wide and 15 feet high. It is said to be one of the original manor houses constructed shortly after the arrival of William Penn and his colony on the banks of the Delaware river. Circumstances point toward that belief, and prove the claim to antiquity, which makes the old log house an important link connecting the distant past with the present.

This house is constructed of oak and chestnut logs hewn from the primeval forest, while standing beside it is a giant oak, the largest by all odds in the surrounding country, which is a living witness of the age of the lowly dwelling which finds shelter beneath its huge outspreading arms. Tree and house are each the complement of the other, and seem destined to continue their intimacy during succeeding years, and perhaps ages.

In the year 1681 A. D., on the 2d day of March, Peter and William Taylor purchased the land upon which these objects of interest stand from William Penn in England, and on the 23d inst. Thomas Powell took title to the land upon which the house and tree stand and adjacent tracts, and after numerous transfers it finally came into the possession of Mr. Powell, who formerly resided in this city, but who now lives in "Star Mount," in northwest Media. Upon discovering the historic value of the house and oak, he subsequently took precautions to preserve the objects of a past age and civilization.

The house is constructed of logs, and to prevent the entrance of cold air they were chinked with mortar. The small windows and doors were hand made, from the primitive oak cut from the forest. The faces and ends of these logs are scarred and defaced by exposure to the storms of at least two centuries, and show plainly the ravages of the "tooth of time," but at heart are as hard and sound as when first placed in position to form a house for one of Penn's followers.

The present owner, desiring to both preserve this ancient structure and to improve its surroundings, added some seven or eight years ago several additional rooms to the original mansion, but outside the massive old chimney is exposed to view, and inside the logs with their plastering, the windows and doors with their wooden latches and strings may be seen, while the low ceiling of homemade boards point to a date when the ax and saw were almost universally used by our forefathers.

At the time when the additions above mentioned were made an old English coin was found. Upon examination the coin proved to be a penny of the reign of King George I, and while the date is almost illegible, it seems to be 1724, or perhaps an earlier date. This old English penny was lying under the old wooden door sill, and had become imbedded in the ground, and was only brought to light by the use of pick and shovel. History and tradition unite in the story in relation to this old house.

Beginning with the river Delaware and reaching as far as portions of Chester county, and bounded also by Ridley and Crum creeks, were some two tracts of land deeded to the Taylors, Powells and others in 1681 by the proprietor and founder of our state, William Penn. Upon each of these two tracts or parcels of land log houses were erected, and one of them was destroyed by fire. One of these houses, the one now owned by Mr. Powell in Upper Providence township, adjoining the town of Media, is the sole survivor, and it is correspondingly prized by him.

The house and old oak, together with the curiosities connected with them, are very antique, and there is no doubt but that the claim of antiquity is well founded. In 1715 it was in the old log cabin that John Powell changed from the Quaker to the Baptist faith, and organized the First Baptist church of Delaware county, known as the Brandywine church. The congregation was formed on June 14, 1715, with 15 members, and among the delegates were Abel Morgan of this city and James Jones and Joseph Eaton of Delaware.

Thus the old house, constructed by a first settler from the virgin forest, which extended from far inland to the shores of the Delaware river, has both a civil and a religious history, and has been both the birthplace of prominent families and the habitation within whose walls a prominent denomination of this and surrounding country first sprung into existence.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Hereditary Names.

According to the invariable custom of the Duke of Richmond's family, it is prescribed that the eldest son and the eldest son of the eldest son shall be named after King Charles II, to whom they owe so much. The same principle is preserved in Lord Salisbury's family, where the eldest sons are named James, after James I, who bestowed the earldom of Salisbury and viscountcy of Cranborne on the original founder of the house.

THE STORM'S SAVAGES

Much Havoc In a Large Section of Country.

FEARFUL WEATHER ON THE LAKES.

Many Few Vessels Out at This Season, or Very Would Have Been Wrecked. Great Damage Was Done In Ohio and Other States.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—The storm in this section was the worst in years. It was remarkable from the fact that almost no fatalities occurred. Buildings in this city were stripped of everything the wind could catch. The weather was terrible on the great lakes, but as few vessels are out at this season of the year comparatively little damage has been done. The telegraph and telephone service has been badly crippled throughout the country.

Dispatches received here show the same state of affairs throughout Illinois. Quincy reports a howling blizzard with snow falling fast, impeding street and railroad traffic. Telegraph and telephone wires are down in all directions. Peoria says storm still raging and serious damage is feared. At Fairbury, Ill., sheet caused considerable damage. August Guenther fell and received probably fatal injuries.

The steamer J. Emery Owen ran aground with her two consorts, the schooners Michigan and Nicholson, off Chicago. Just how the pilot lost his bearings is not yet known, but was undoubtedly due to a blinding snowstorm. In all there were between 50 and 75 people on board the three vessels, a large majority of them, however, being on the steamer.

Signals of distress were at once given but it was not until after daylight that they were seen and answered. Great delay was caused by the wrecking of a boat from Evanston a few minutes after it was launched. Another boat was soon secured, and all on board were saved.

LOUISVILLE.—No loss of life has been reported as a result of the gale, but much damage was done along the Ohio river towns in Kentucky and Indiana. In Louisville several residences were unroofed, chimneys were leveled and awnings and signs demolished, but across the river the damage was more severe. At Jeffersonville many barns were wrecked and along Front street residences were unroofed and windows blown in.

At Arcotic Springs, Captain Hoffman's coal fleet was wrecked and two of his doddies sunk. Three shanty boats at Port Fulton were sunk and Captain Duffy's coal fleet was torn from its moorings and 25 empty coal boats lost. Several men on the various coal boats narrowly escaped death, being rescued by small skiffs.

At Utica, Ind., the residence of William Hooper was entirely demolished, but the family escaped injury. A family on board a wrecked shanty boat at Utica narrowly escaped with their lives.

At Bird's Eye, Ind., many roofs were blown off by the storm, and at Franklin, Ind., the wind wrecked the new City hall. Loss, $15,000.

BUFFALO.—The damage to various kinds of property by the storm has been very great, but no fatalities have occurred. Most of the loss has been due to the high water in the harbor, caused by the prevailing direction of the wind. The water in the harbor and river has risen at least six feet, damaging railroad tracks and delaying trains. The $40,000 side-wheel excursion steamer Shrewsbury was washed away from the supports on which it was placed and beached. The tug Elk was sunk by the large freight steamer Syracuse in a collision which occurred at the foot of Commercial street. Several persons have been injured by flying objects, but none fatally.

DETROIT.—The gale here wrecked chimneys, plate glass windows, signs and trees in all parts of the city. No serious damage was done, however, and as yet no marine disasters have been reported.

THE STORM IN OHIO.

Much Damage Done Throughout the Entire State.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 27.—Later reports show that the damage done by the storm in this city will foot up to many thousands of dollars.

The roof of Music hall, one of the largest structures in the city, was loosened and many buildings wrecked. The roof of a shed fell upon John Immertman of No. 19 Marquand street, injuring him so badly that he will probably die.

Special dispatches from the Ohio fields show that hundreds of oil derricks were blown down and general havoc wrought throughout the entire section. The loss will be very heavy.

PUT-IN-BAY.—The roof of V. Deller's store, the parapets of the town hall and the front of the museum were blown off by the gale. A deck hand of the steamer Messenger, known as "Reddy," was found drowned in Fox's dock here. He was blown from the dock during the night. A Toledo sand-sucker dragged her anchor and lies in the channel between here and Middle Bass island. Two men are aboard.

A QUIET WEDDING.

The Standard Oil King's Daughter Married to Harold McCormick of Chicago.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The guests at the marriage of Miss Edith Rockefeller, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, to Mr. Harold McCormick of Chicago, in the latter's apartments at the Buckingham hotel, were only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom.

The apartments were beautifully decorated with pink and white chrysanthemums placed against a background of palms. The bride couple stood within a wishbone of white lilies and orchids, beneath a wedding bell of the same flowers.

Mr. McCormick's mother, Mrs. C. H. McCormick, his brothers, C. H. McCormick and Stanley McCormick, Mrs. Emmons Blaine and his cousins, the Misses Mary and Henrietta McCormick, of Chicago were present at the ceremony besides the Rockefeller family.

Miss Alta Rockefeller, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the following were the bridesmaids: Miss Carrie McCormick, Miss Caldwell, Miss Scott, Miss Grace Scott and Miss Frances Adams. Mr. Stanley McCormick was best man. The following were ushers: Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mr. T. Harvey, Mr. Vance McCormick, Mr. Gerald Herrick, Mr. Howard Colby, Mr. James Blair and Mr. Jacob Otto.

The Rev. W. H. D. Faunce of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, assisted by the Rev. Dr. John Hall of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride cut the cake and distributed it to her more intimate friends, who returned to the Rockefeller mansion, 4 West Fifty-fourth street, where they were received by Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller on behalf of the groom and bride and where the wedding breakfast was served. The bride and groom remained at the hotel.

Indians Don't Want a Change.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—General Frank C. Armstrong, a member of the Dawes Indian Territory commission, has submitted the annual report of the commission to Secretary Hoke Smith. General Armstrong says the commission was unable to make any negotiation with the five civilized tribes for a change in the forms of government of the territory, and that if there is a desire for a change in the Indian Territory congress will have to take the matter in hand.

Gift to the Battleship Maine.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 27.—Governor Cleave, in behalf of the state of Maine, has presented to the new battleship which bears the name of the commonwealth an elaborate silver service. The exercises were held in the City hall, which was crowded with spectators, including citizens of Portland, officers and sailors and marines from the battleship.

Sixty-Two Bodies Recovered.

MADRID, Nov. 27.—Sixty-two bodies, of which 37 were the remains of women, have already been recovered from the ruins of the cartridge factory at Palma, island of Majorca, which was blown up. It is now said that the explosion was caused by a workman who had been dismissed.

'Squire Gould, who has been ill with heart and lung trouble, is recovering, and was in his office today.

A number of the potteries worked last night in order to give their employees half a day on Thanksgiving.

Thomas Powell, of Gardendale, who wrenched his knee a few days ago, in jumping from a wagon, is able to be out again, but is obliged to use crutches to aid him in walking.

An alley which enters the Calcutta road is causing annoyance. A wall has been built at the junction, and people suggest that the city buy a balloon to lift pedestrians to the street.

Frank Chalfant, formerly of this place, and at one time first mate on the steamer Andes, stopped here yesterday on his way from the Atlanta exposition to Pittsburg, to call on his old friends.

Fire was officially put in the street cars this morning for the first time, as the power house is now supplied with coal. The cars that are not equipped with stoves will be heated by electricity.

Arthur Stanway, who arrived from England a few days ago, spent yesterday hunting in the woods; he succeeded in bagging a number of rabbits but says they are nothing near the size of the bunnies of England.

Two dirty, miserable-looking tramps wandered along Market street yesterday evening, typical specimens of their class. After making a few calls they left town, stopping a reporter to tell him "dat dese is generous people in dis place. See!"

Harrison Rinehart and his force of men are at work today cutting down the bank of the Gaston property on Calcutta road. The question of what disposition was to be made of that point was settled by Mr. Gaston agreeing to sign a waiver.

A drunken man attracted a great deal of attention on Fourth street last night by his vain endeavors to walk in a straight line. After wandering around for about two hours he was finally taken in hand by a companion, who escorted him to his home.

W. Calhoun has made application to President Nick Young, of the National league, for a position as umpire. Mr. Calhoun is eminently qualified to fill the position, as he is thoroughly conversant with all the rules and regulations governing base ball.

Members of the Young Men's Christian association gymnasium have organized an Indian club class and are practicing regularly. All the most intricate moves of this art will be accomplished, and the class is being fitted with the latest designs in fancy clubs, making a pretty sight when going through the drill.

The Rebeckas elected the following officers at the meeting last night: noble grand, Mrs. Charles Hard; vice grand, Mrs. David Jessop; recording secretary, Mrs. J. E. Anderson; financial secretary, Mrs. Thomas Pickall; trustees, Mrs. Lewis Calhoun and Mrs. William Morris. Mrs. Thomas Pickall was elected state delegate for two years and Miss Clara Hindle was chosen as alternate. At the next meeting there will be an initiation, to be followed by a social.

There was fun for a small party of spectators near the China works yesterday afternoon. A turkey intended for someone's Thanksgiving dinner had escaped from its owner, and after a lively chase, extending over a great scope of mud, took refuge on a barn near the works. As it could not be induced to come down from its perch, the owner secured a ladder and a rope, and the bird was eventually lassoed in the most approved style and carried triumphantly away.

A number of people were amused last evening because a young man who called on his best girl neglected to pull down the blind. The place is a dress-making establishment not far from the Diamond, and there was a yell of laughter from the spectators, pedestrians who chanced to look at the window, as they saw a strong arm steal around a willow form and almost heard the resounding smack of kisses. The principals were in blissful ignorance of the existence of an audience.

Special dispatches from the Ohio fields show that hundreds of oil derricks were blown down and general havoc wrought throughout the entire section. The loss will be very heavy. PITT-S-BAY.—The roof of V. Deller's store, the parapets of the town hall and the front of the museum were blown off by the gale. A deck hand of the steamer Messenger, known as "Reddy," was found drowned in Fox's dock here. He was blown from the dock during the night. A QUIET WEDDING.

The apartments were beautifully decorated with pink and white chrysanthemums placed against a background of palms. The bride couple stood within a wishbone of white lilies and orchids, beneath a wedding bell of the same flowers.

Mr. McCormick's mother, Mrs. C. H. McCormick, his brothers, C. H. McCormick and Stanley McCormick, Mrs. Emmons Blaine and his cousins, the Misses Mary and Henrietta McCormick, of Chicago were present at the ceremony besides the Rockefeller family. Miss Alta Rockefeller, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the following were the bridesmaids: Miss Carrie McCormick, Miss Caldwell, Miss Scott, Miss Grace Scott and Miss Frances Adams. Mr. Stanley McCormick was best man. The following were ushers: Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mr. T. Harvey, Mr. Vance McCormick, Mr. Gerald Herrick, Mr. Howard Colby, Mr. James Blair and Mr. Jacob Otto.

The Rev. W. H. D. Faunce of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, assisted by the Rev. Dr. John Hall of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride cut the cake and distributed it to her more intimate friends, who returned to the Rockefeller mansion, 4 West Fifty-fourth street, where they were received by Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller on behalf of the groom and bride and where the wedding breakfast was served. The bride and groom remained at the hotel.

Indians Don't Want a Change.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—General Frank C. Armstrong, a member of the Dawes Indian Territory commission, has submitted the annual report of the commission to Secretary Hoke Smith. General Armstrong says the commission was unable to make any negotiation with the five civilized tribes for a change in the forms of government of the territory, and that if there is a desire for a change in the Indian Territory congress will have to take the matter in hand.

FREED JAMES HICKEY

He Was Acquitted of Pocket
Picking Today.

THE JURY WAS OUT FOR HOURS

But It Eventually Decided That He Did Not Take Elwood Bunting's Money.
A Suit From Salineville That is of More Than Usual Interest.

Special to NEWS REVIEW.

LISBON, Nov. 27.—The case of James Hickey went to the jury last night, but it was hours before they could reach a decision.

The evidence given yesterday was of a character not calculated to convince the jury that Hickey had stolen $300 from Elwood Bunting in a Wells-ville saloon although some damaging testimony was given. Judge Billingsley charged the jury early last evening, and they retired soon after 7 o'clock, but it was after 4 o'clock this morning before they reached a decision. How they stood could not be learned, but the verdict seemed to give satisfaction with those disinterested parties who had heard the evidence.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Made in a Petition Filed by Salineville Parties.

LISBON, Nov. 27.—An action to recover parts of two lots in Salineville was commenced here today the property having been transferred from Robert McGonagle to his wife for the purpose it is alleged of defrauding his creditors. The People's Lecture course, which was a great success last winter, was inaugurated for the season by a lecture from Doctor Leland on "World Making." The lecture, which occupied nearly two hours, was a very happy blending of the popular and scientific. There were passages of rare beauty and eloquence; and while discussing the most intricate questions of geology and astronomy, it was done with such simplicity and pure English that the audience was held by the speaker from the first word to the last.—Pittsburg Daily Dispatch.

THE STORM IN PENNSYLVANIA

Fierce Along the Lakes, But Minor Damage Done Elsewhere.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 27.—The storm did considerable damage here. Signs and awnings were blown down and pedestrians were kept busy protecting themselves from the fierce blasts or chasing their wandering headgears as they were blowing along the pavements. Minor damage was done to considerable property.

The highest velocity reached by the wind in this city was 32 miles an hour. The storm brought with it a large quantity of rain, but for the reason that it shifted somewhat toward the north, Pittsburgh and vicinity did not get as large a rainfall as other points. Along the Mississippi valley and through the upper Allegheny there was a large fall of more than an inch, while here it was .39 of an inch.

Comparatively small damage was done throughout Western Pennsylvania. At Erie and other points along the lake the gale was terrific in its fierceness, and a good deal of damage was done to shipping.

THE WALLER CASE.

The Kansas Delegation Will Ask For More Determined Action.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The Kansas congressional delegation, as soon as possible after the Fifty-fourth congress begins, will introduce resolutions in both houses looking to an investigation of the circumstances connected with the arrest and imprisonment of ex-Consul Waller.

The members of the delegation take the position that the United States is entitled to the record of the trial as a matter of right, and, therefore, should not ask it as an act of comity. The probabilities are that they will attempt to secure the passage of a resolution instructing the government to stand by its demand for the document. The first resolution, however, only will call for the correspondence in the case.

These Chinese Can Stay a Year.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The treasury officials have received information from Atlanta that the Chinese theatrical enterprise at the exposition has proven a pecuniary failure, and that 23 of the Chinese women connected with it have gone to San Francisco. Under the joint resolution of congress foreigners who are connected with the exposition may remain in the country one year after the close of the fair, and hence the 23 Chinese women cannot be molested for one year from Jan. 1 next.

Eleven Men Scalded.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The main steam pipe, nine inches in diameter, leading from the main boiler of the engine room, that is situated under the sidewalk in a deep cellar in Oscar Hammerstein's Olympia theater, at Broadway and Fifty-fifth street, has burst, scalding 11 men, one of whom, Fred Wynant, the assistant electrician, was killed instantly.

Andrew Higgins, the assistant engineer, died of his injuries in the Bellevue hospital.

Dismissed the Case Against Burke.

ALBANY, Nov. 27.—In the suit of ex-Congressman Belden and other bond holders against Stevenson Burke and his associates, creditors of the Columbus, Toledo and Hocking Valley Railroad company, Winslow, Lanier & Co., Drexel, Morgan & Co., and the Central Trust company, involving $8,000,000, the court of appeals affirms the decision of Ingraham of the special term, dismissing the case.

Will Condemn Spain's Policy.

BARCELONA, Spain, Nov. 27.—A sensation has been caused here by the action of the Republican leaders, who have decided to call a great mass meeting for the purpose of condemning the policy of the government in Cuba. It is proposed to issue a manifesto, demanding autonomy for Cuba as a sure means of concluding the war on the island.

Levied on Express Company Property.

LEXINGTON, Va., Nov. 27.—Deputy United States Marshal Donald of the United States district court has levied on all the property of the United States Express company at this point to satisfy in part a judgment rendered by the United States district court against this company for $60,000 in favor of F. M. Threadgill & Co. of Lynchburg for violation of contract.

Cuban Rebels Derrail a Train.

HAVANA, Nov. 27.—A band of insurgents has derailed a train in the Caibarien district of the province of Santa Clara, killing many of the persons on board and wounding a number of others. The military escort on board the train made a brave defense, during the course of which both sides lost heavily. The insurgents burned the derailed cars.

No Attention to Grant's Dissent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The police commissioners have dismissed from the force Captain Eakins of the Mercer street station. The charges were preferred by the Parkhurst society. Police Commissioner Fred D. Grant dissented from the findings of the other three commissioners.

A Double Shooting Affair.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 27.—Arlington Heights has been the scene of a double shooting affair, which will result in the death of Thomas Colt, a photographer of New York city, and the possible manslaughter for life of Miss Carrie Plate, whose life Colt tried to take before ending his own.

Guilty of Criminal Assault.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Walter L. S. Langerman, whose sensational trial for criminal assault on Miss Barbara Aub has created a stir in the city for the past week, has been convicted. The extreme penalty for the offense is 20 years' imprisonment. Langerman was remanded until Friday for sentence.

Steamboatmen Badly Hurt.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 27.—While the towboat W. W. O'Neil was getting up steam to go to Pittsburgh the "nigger" boiler exploded. Engineer Andrew McRobinson had his leg broken and Mate T. W. McDermott and Steward
William Hyser were badly scalded.
All live in Pittsburgh.

The great majority of men and women, of even very much more than ordinary intelligence, pay no attention whatsoever to the well established rules governing the preservation of health. Simple symptoms of indigestion or slight disarrangements of the stomach or system are treated by them
as trivial happenings, having no weight or bearing upon their general health.
In this seeming neglect or too much over confidence in their own robustness lies the greatest mistake of their lives, as it is invariably from these little ailments giant chronic diseases spring. To guard fully against such evils, use Libby's Phosphatic Beef, Iron and Wine; the only true tonic to the stomach system, system and nerves,
perfect strength and tissue producer,

He Was Acquitted of Pocket Picking Today.

THE JURY WAS OUT FOR HOURS

But It Eventually Decided That He Did Not Take Elwood Bunting's Money. A Suit From Salineville That is of More Than Usual Interest.

Special to NEWS REVIEW.

LISBON, Nov. 27.—The case of James Hickey went to the jury last night, but it was hours before they could reach a decision.

The evidence given yesterday was of a character not calculated to convince the jury that Hickey had stolen $300 from Elwood Bunting in a Wells-ville saloon although some damaging testimony was given. Judge Billingsley charged the jury early last evening, and they retired soon after 7 o'clock, but it was after 4 o'clock this morning before they reached a decision. How they stood could not be learned, but the verdict seemed to give satisfaction with those disinterested parties who had heard the evidence.

THE WALLER CASE.

The Kansas Delegation Will Ask For More Determined Action.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—The Kansas congressional delegation, as soon as possible after the Fifty-fourth congress begins, will introduce resolutions in both houses looking to an investigation of the circumstances connected with the arrest and imprisonment of ex-Consul Waller.

The members of the delegation take the position that the United States is entitled to the record of the trial as a matter of right, and, therefore, should not ask it as an act of comity. The probabilities are that they will attempt to secure the passage of a resolution instructing the government to stand by its demand for the document. The first resolution, however, only will call for the correspondence in the case.

These Chinese Can Stay a Year.

Will Condemn Spain's Policy.

BARCELONA, Spain, Nov. 27.—A sensation has been caused here by the action of the Republican leaders, who have decided to call a great mass meeting for the purpose of condemning the policy of the government in Cuba. M. Threadgill & Co. of Lynchburg for violation of contract.

Cuban Rebels Derail a Train.

HAVANA, Nov. 27.—A band of insurgents has derailed a train in the Caibarien district of the province of Santa Clara, killing many of the persons on board and wounding a number of others. The military escort on board the train made a brave defense, during the course of which both sides lost heavily. The insurgents burned the derailed cars.

No Attention to Grant's Dissent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The police commissioners have dismissed from the force Captain Eakins of the Mercer street station. The charges were preferred by the Parkhurst society. Police Commissioner Fred D. Grant dissented from the findings of the other three commissioners.

Steamboatmen Badly Hurt.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 27.—While the towboat W. W. O'Neil was getting up steam to go to Pittsburg the "nigger" boiler exploded. Engineer Andrew McKimmon had his leg broken and Mate T. W. McDermott and Steward William Hysser were badly scalded. All live in Pittsburg.

The great majority of men and women, of even very much more than ordinary intelligence, pay no attention whatsoever to the well established rules governing the preservation of health. Simple symptoms of indigestion or slight disarrangements of the stomach or system are treated by them as trivial happenings, having no weight or bearing upon their general health. In this seeming neglect or too much over confidence in their own robustness lies the greatest mistake of their lives, as it is invariably from these little ailments giant chronic diseases spring. To guard fully against such evils, use Libby's Phosphatic Beef, Iron and Wine; the only true tonic to the stomach system, system and nerves, perfect strength and tissue producer, and new rich blood matter. Go or send for it to Alvin H. Bulger, druggist, Sixth and West Market.
